KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

Miracle Work

The Great Painter Who Wasn't There Worked On And On In His Studio In Springs

By Dan Rattiner

One of the greatest painters of the twentieth century was Willem de Kooning, a Dutchman who came to New York City as a stowaway and illegal immigrant in 1926. He was 22 years old at the time. Soon he joined the large group of anti-establishment painters who made their home at that time in Greenwich Village. In 1962, when he was 58, he moved to Springs in East Hampton where he built a studio and continued to paint, setting up a routine where he went out to the studio in his backyard in the morning and returned to the main house late in the day. This is the story of how his work in Springs, during the later part of his life — he died only six years ago — affected the art world. What he accomplished in respect to contemporary art is one of the most extraordinary things imaginable.

By the time de Kooning moved here, he was already one of the most celebrated painters in America. After World War II, along with Robert Motherwell and Jackson Pollock, he established the Abstract Expressionist movement, which essentially moved the center of the art world from its traditional home in Paris to its new home in

New York City.

Specifically, there was his WOMEN series. Here is how the art critic Bridget Alsdorf described that work.

"From 1950 to 1955, de Kooning completed his famous WOMEN series, integrating the human

In art studios and classrooms around the world at that time, painters could be seen grunting, charging, slashing and slopping paint to canvas in an effort to reproduce the vivid world that de Kooning presented, but none could equal him. Some of his paintings today sell for upwards of $10 million.

After the WOMEN series, de Kooning began to paint female forms that were no longer identifiable as such, but which appeared to be a kind of blind essence of women. It was during this time that he moved to the Springs. His paintings were part woman and part landscape, with agitated, clashing colors expressed from no particular viewpoint. The colors were red, turquoise and chrome yellow. They seemed to contain enormous power. Many critics considered these paintings to be his finest work to date.

In 1979, de Kooning was 75. Since 1956, he had been separated, though never divorced, from his wife Elaine, who moved out west. In the meantime, he had taken up with Joan Ward, a local woman, with whom he fathered a daughter named Lisa, his only child. And his short term memory began to fail.

form with the aggressive paint application, bold colors and sweeping strokes of Abstract Expressionism. These female 'portraits' provoked not only their vulgar carnality and garish colors, but also, because of their embrace of figural representation, a choice deemed regressive by many of de Kooning's Abstract Expressionist contemporaries."

Hamptonite Paul McCartney is involved in a tempest in a teacup with Yoko Ono, the widow of John Lennon. It concerns a new album that McCartney came out with this month entitled "Back in the U.S.," that features songs written by Lennon and McCartney. Except on this album the order is changed and they are written by McCartney and Lennon. For some people, it's like changing Gilbert and Sullivan to Sullivan and Gilbert. It just isn't done, and they're arguing about it.

Marty Richards of Southampton is the proud co-producer of the new film Chicago, based on the musical of that name. It will be released December 27 and the early line, from those who have seen it, is that it is sensational. It stars Catherine Zeta-Jones, Renee Zellweger and Richard Gere.

Montauk's Paul Simon, along with his former collaborator Art Garfunkel, will receive a Grammy Award for Lifetime Achievement at Madison Square Garden on February 23.

This is our last issue of 2002. The next issue of Dan's Papers will appear three weeks from now, which is January 10. This is the annual two week break we make every year so we can get a little time off around the holidays and though it does result in people stopping by upset the paper doesn't seem to be out, that's the way it is. In addition to Christmas material in this issue, you will also find our annual PREDICTIONS FOR 2003 feature, with contributions coming from Hamptonites Mort Zuckerman, Adrien Arpel, Alec Baldwin, LeRoy Neiman, Cliff Robertson, labor negotiator Ted Kheel and Southampton College Chancellor Robert F. # GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S. and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed - a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling -- and their parents, too!

Work (continued from page 9)

Nevertheless, he continued painting in his rich, vibrant way, his paintings now more landscape and oceanic abstractions, but he also began to fall into a depression. It appeared he was done, and over the next two years he made no paintings at all. And then, suddenly, he began painting again, presenting work which was unlike any he had done before.

It was hard to define what he was doing. He seemed to be painting groups of ribbons flowing in and out of one another. People called them de Kooning's "Ribbon Paintings." People also began to notice that de Kooning, formerly a gregarious man with a great wit, was now unable to identify some of the people who visited him during his daily routine, people he had known and seen almost every day during the prior twenty years. He was losing his sense of the day-to-day goings on around him. In 1978, Elaine moved back from the west. She and Joan Ward took turns caring for him. Nurses were hired. De Kooning, at age 80, was falling into a dark, dark time from which it was thought he would never recover. Only death awaited.

But de Kooning still had work to do. Beginning in 1980 and continuing on for the next nine years here in East Hampton, he produced some of the most remarkable paintings of his career. They were not, the critics said, the paintings that were made by Cezanne or Monet in the twilight of their lives. They seemed to be the essence of something. But what?

De Kooning, who could not identify anybody anymore, neither wife nor mistress nor daughter, who hardly spoke and who didn't know where he was, would get up every morning, dress, go to his studio to paint, and return in the evening where he would be tended to by others. The paintings, which like all great paintings had to come from deep inside, were continuing to do so. It was the man who was falling away. In fact, the work was coming from The Man Who Wasn't There. It was unique in the annals of painting.

Here is what the critic for the New Republic, reviewing these paintings, said about them.

"How then, should one judge these works? With neither hallelujahs nor groans. To be sure, de Kooning's earlier pictures would dominate these dilatory 'ribbons.' The ribbon paintings do not quite have the profundity that we associate with the greatest of late styles, that quality of transcendent summary that one finds in late Beethoven or late Matisse. The ribbons may represent a simplification; but too much has been taken away. Yet the emptiness is not clinical, and the pictures matter. They have a peculiar and haunting force."

Joan, Elaine and Lisa now were forced to fend off the people who for so many years had called him friend. He could not recognize them. It would do neither him nor them good. No one was to be allowed near him. He painted. He painted every day for the next eight years. Then he stopped. It was 1989 and Elaine, still his wife, passed away. De Kooning was 85 years old. He existed, continued to exist, lovingly cared for by his family members, until finally he died in March of 1997. He was 92.

Where did that last nine years of paintings come from? Did de Kooning know he was painting them? Some say he did not. Some say he did.

And then there was this explanation. It accompanied an exhibition of de Kooning's later Ribbon Paintings — beginning before and ending after his death — shown at the Museum of Modern Art in the spring of 1997.

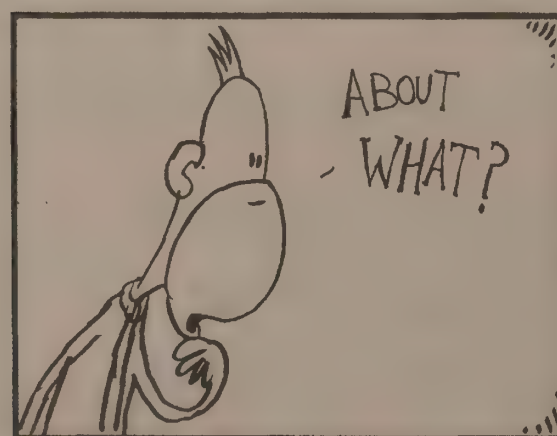

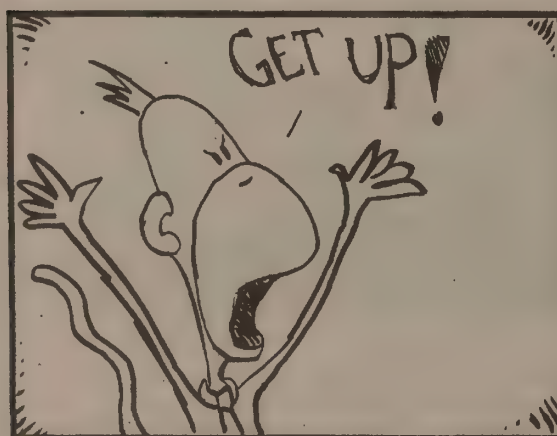

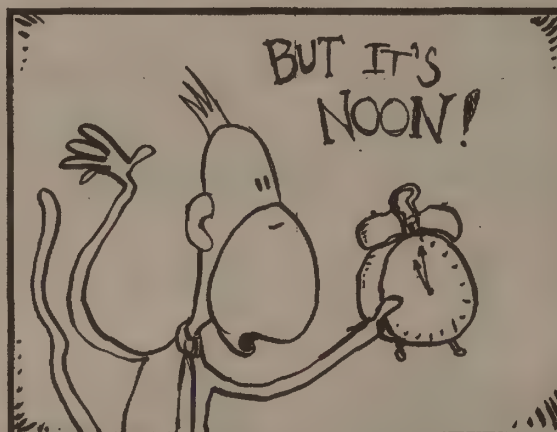

"About 15 years ago, painter Chuck Close went out to Springs, Long Island, to meet Willem de Kooning, one of the greatest American artists of this century. As Close describes him, de Kooning was a wreck. Stooped and vacant eyed, shuffling around in pajamas, the aged artist couldn't identify friends or participate in conversation. He drifted away from his guests to the television where Close found him channel surfing, staring at the procession of silent images as they blinked past, his once legendary attention span splintered into nothingness.

"Before Close left, de Kooning's wife, Elaine, suggested that Bill show Close his recent paintings. Nervously, Close followed de Kooning into the famous hanger-like studio. As de Kooning crossed the threshold, a transformation took place. He straightened up. His eyes brightened. He began speaking articulately about each of the paintings in turn. He modeled the air with his hands, making beautiful, precise gestures that earlier visitors had described. He was himself.

Or rather, as Close realized, he was two selves: de Kooning the man had long since disintegrated. Asked a factual question, he was helpless, ignorant of the date, of where he lived. But de Kooning the artist was still healthy. He would continue to paint for nearly a decade, long after he had lost the ability to sign his own name."

THE CHIMNEY STORY

By Dan Rattiner

A Christmas Fable For The Children Of The Hamptons (To Be Read Aloud)

"So it has ten chimneys," the Mayor said, looking at the plans.

"That's what he plans to call his new home. Ten Chimneys," a councilman said.

The Mayor, the councilmen and several experts were up in front of an audience of about fifty townspeople there in Town Hall that evening, and they were looking at a set of plans for a proposed new home.

"Shall we vote?" the mayor asked.

And so they did. The plan for the new mansion was passed unanimously. The number of chimneys did not matter. There were plenty of other houses with numerous chimneys. It just had to conform to the Town code, which it did.

"Which brings us to the really hard part of the meeting," the Mayor said after the vote was taken. "It's a letter from Jimmy Henderson, a ten-year-old boy in Sagaponack who happens to be a nephew of mine. He's worried about Santa. I'll read the letter to you. I think you should pass a law saying that the people who own the big houses have to build a fire on Christmas eve in the fireplace where they want Santa to come down. That way there would be no mistake what chimney he should come down."

"There sure are a lot of new homes being built with five or more fireplaces," a councilman said. "That could certainly confuse anybody."

"I think he means there should be fires built in EVERY fireplace EXCEPT where he wants to have Santa come down," a second councilman said. "That way his pants won't Mayor asked.

"This is a free country. Whether I want Santa to come down is none of your business. A man's home is his castle."

"We're only trying to help out Santa here," the Mayor said.

"Bah!" the grouch said.

"Building fires in nine fireplaces could be a fire hazard," the fire inspector said.

"I propose that everybody in town be given a red flag with a big S on it," a councilman said. "The flag has to be attached to the preferred chimney. On the outside. So Santa can see."

"Some people only have ONE chimney," another councilman said.

"I'm not climbing up on my roof to put a flag up," the grouch said.

"The flag could be a fire hazard," the fire inspector said. "It would have to be made out of some fireproof material."

"Asbestos," the first councilman said brightly.

"Asbestos is illegal," the Mayor said. "It's bad for you."

"Then red aluminum."

"You can't make a flag out of aluminum," a catch on fire."

A grouchy looking man got up in the audience.

"Nobody is telling me which fireplaces to build fires in," he said.

Everybody looked at this man. They'd never seen such a grouchy looking person.

"Don't you want Santa to come down?" the third councilman said.

"Yes you can," the Mayor said.

"Aluminum wouldn't be a flag."

"Aluminum would MELT," the fire inspector said.

"We're talking about a non-problem here," the Mayor said. "The aluminum flag would be put up on top of the chimney that DIDN'T have the fire going in it."

"Nobody's coming on my property to put up an aluminum flag," the grouch said.

A vote was taken. The Mayor voted in favor. All four councilmen voted against. That was the end of that.

"I don't want ANYBODY," the grouch said, "Santa, an elf, a reindeer, a councilman, the fire inspector, NOBODY, coming on my property, across my lawn to my roof and chimneys to do ANYTHING."

"Don't you want any presents?" the Mayor said.

"Of course I want presents," the grouch said. "I want them in boxes, brought up my front walk, and left by the front door. Somebody can ring the bell if they need something signed. I'll come out and sign for it. But nobody gets inside."

"What's going on inside, anyway?" the police commissioner said.

"Get a search warrant," the grouch said. "Go ahead and waste your time."

"How DOES Santa know which chimney to go down?" the Mayor asked nobody in particular.

At that moment, a very small man who nobody had ever seen before in Town Hall stood up in the audience. He had a red cap with bells on it, a green coat and big boots that curved up with bells on the end that jingled.

"Santa will tell you HIMSELF," this little man said in a high, squeaky voice.

And with that, there was a thumping on the roof of Town Hall, followed by a bump in the fireplace at the back of the room, a puff of black smoke and then, there he was, Santa Claus, a big man with a big belly, red cap, shiny black belt and shiny black boots. He walked to the front of the room, and he stood and faced everybody. Not a single piece of black soot was on him. And nobody could speak a word. He adjusted his wire-rimmed glasses with a mittened index finger. Then he spoke.

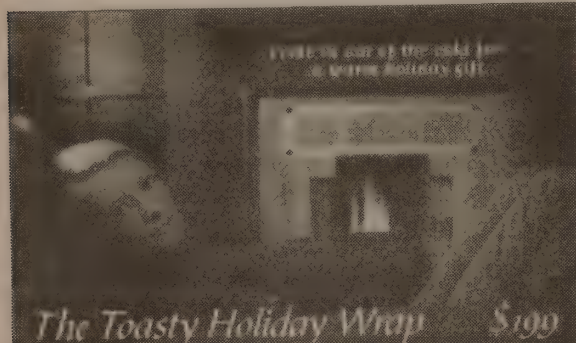

"I'd like to tell you how this works," he said. He had a great booming voice with, for some reason, a trace of a Southern accent. Memphis? Nashville?

A woman ran up with a black book.

"Place your right hand on the book," she said. "Do you promise to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God?"

Santa placed his mitten on the book. "I do," he said.

Sleigh Riding For Adults

Three Important Rules For The Next Time It Snows Out Here

By Dan Rattiner

A few years ago, I watched some ten year olds lie down on a hillside and roll all the way to the bottom screaming and laughing. It was a pretty good-sized hill and my first thought was, gee, that looks like fun and I haven't done that in awhile. Last time I did that, I thought, I was ten years old, too.

Anyway, I then said to myself I didn't see any reason why I couldn't do that right then and there. I'm a good bit older and I'm more serious about things now, but boy it was fun then and it would probably be fun now. So I set down my briefcase, took off my coat, loosened my tie, and lay down sideways on the hill. I rolled and I rolled and when I got to the bottom I just lay there on my back, moaning and nauseous, until a halo of ten-year-old faces appeared above me. They were spinning at first, but after awhile as I lay there motionless, I saw that they were concerned faces, very serious faces for ten year olds and they were all peering down at me very quiet like.

"I'm okay," I said.

"You sure, mister?"

"Yeah. I'll just lay here for awhile."

The smallest of the ten year olds poked me with something. It was my briefcase. "Here, mister," he said.

So I was thinking about this the other morning when, just before Christmas, the snow fell and fell and fell and pretty soon I saw kids going by the house dragging sleds. A few doors down from me, there is this long narrow driveway that goes up the side of the hill I live on and ends at the top in a circle where one or two new houses have been built in what was supposed to have been a much larger development. Cars rarely go up and down this long driveway, but it is plowed, and if you can get the idea of a kid going down and meeting a car coming up out of your mind, it is probably a good, nifty sled run.

What is even better, however, is a place called Quail Hill in Amagansett, not far from where I live, ter a snowfall and my hat is off to the generous owner of this property who allows so much laughter and fun to go on on a winter's day.

I remembered my rolling down the hill with the ten year olds. And I thought I'd be pretty stupid to try this. Then I put on a favorite pair of fur-lined boots I have had for ten years, a hat, scarf, mittens and a heavy coat and went into town to buy a sled.

Now, this article is entitled Sleigh Riding for Adults, and so here comes the part about picking out your kind of sled. At least this is my advice.

Do not go for the blue or red saucers with the handgrips. It was just an instinctual thing, but I've been on them, we've all been on them, and you spin around and around as you go down a hill and you are pretty much out of control. Quail Hill, or the likes of Quail Hill, might be just fine for spinning saucers if you're a forty-pound kid in a snowsuit. But if you're a hundred and fifty pounds or more, you're going to be mowing down small kids like bowling pins. I opted for something I could steer.

The choice, it seemed, was between a plastic toboggan thing in the shape of a speedboat hull that cost around $18 and an old-fashioned Flexible Flier with the wooden slats and metal rails for $65. Both can be steered — the toboggan by wiggling handgrips and the Flexible Flier sled by twisting the crossbar — but the clincher for me was that with the a broad hill that every year it snows is swarmed over by lots and lots of parents and small children. It extends from the top down a steep drop that features several lumps along the way, ending in a pasture dotted with fir trees. When the snow falls, the owner of this hill — it is private property — knows that the kids are coming and puts hay bales down around the trees at the bottom. Maybe twenty kids at a time could go down, shoulder to shoulder, if they chose to do so, which they don't. It's a treasure of the town af-

Sleigh (continued from previous page)

Flexible Flier I'd be lying down, my nose to the front, getting the first and quickest reaction of whatever would be coming my way. With the toboggan, I'd be sitting down. The feet would plow into things first. Didn't seem right.

So anyway, I bought the Flexible Flier for me and I bought the toboggan for my date for this experience, who was Mary Jane of Mary Jane's Restaurant, and I threw the sleds in the back of the car, picked her up and off we went to Quail Hill. It was noon.

Quail Hill was pandemonium at that hour. Kids screaming and shouting and going down the hill frontwards and backwards and spinning and then dragging their saucers and sleds back up the hill and all these middle-aged adults standing around quietly and worriedly at the top.

The first thing I noticed was that, getting out of the car, I was slipping and sliding all over the street trying to get the sleds out the back. I had these boots on so I couldn't understand it. It was like wearing ice skates.

Anyway, I quickly got into the swing of things and forgot about my sliding all over, and I dragged the sled, and Mary Jane carried the lightweight toboggan over to the staging area.

I looked down. I've never seen a hill like this. It was frightening. A huge drop, like from the top of Mt. Everest. Impossible to sled down. It was, however, swarming with kids as young as three and as old as twelve. They were going down, up, sideways, totally oblivious to the fact of what I was about to do. If I dared.

I set the sled down. "Here goes," I said.

"I'm right behind you," Mary Jane said.

Lying on the sled on your stomach, face forward, is, indeed, a power position. The kids are monsters, two and three times higher off the ground than you are. But you just know you can wiggle that bar and zip between them. Yes you can. And there was a bonus. The legs and feet stick out the back. They are emergency brakes. Just dig in your toes for an emergency kid-save. It should work.

"HERE GOES!" I said, and I was off.

The kids all saw me coming. They ran to the sides, clearing the way. I started slowly, then picked up speed, and started down, accelerating to ten miles an hour, then twenty-five, then sixty, then a hundred. I was a bullet, the kids scattering to get out of my way, and those that didn't see me until too late – remember, many of these kids cannot cross the street without holding an adult's hand – and I could maneuver this way and that by twisting the bar and leaning over to one side then the other.

As I went down, I fully expected Mary Jane to come zipping past me. I was dragging my feet. The plastic toboggan should have had much more velocity than the old runner sled, but she stayed behind me. Laughing hysterically, I might add.

Finally, I came to a halt, right between two evergreens with the hay bails around the trunk, and Mary Jane came to a halt right alongside me. We just laughed and laughed until the other kids started coming over to see what the fuss was about.

Well, there was no fuss. It was the end of a rocket ride and breathlessly we rolled off our sleds into the snow and lay there awhile, breathing heavily. Then we got up, at which time I discovered my second big tip about adult sleigh riding. Do NOT wear your favorite ten-year-old boots.

The snow was packed slick, and trying to take the sled back up I was slipping and sliding and falling down like Charlie Chaplin with his banana peel. Mary Jane immediately saw the problem. When I was down, you could see the boot bottoms. These wonderful old boots had absolutely no tread. They were ridiculous. And the only way to get back up the hill was to either take them off, which was out of the question, or stab my sled into the snow in front of me and, using it as a big stake, work my way back up to the top of the hill. I could also accept pulls from other children and from Mary Jane. But an alpha male can be embarrassed by such a thing.

"It's the boots, it's the boots," Mary Jane said. Later, after four or five runs down the hill, she said, "If it was me with those boots you'd pull ME up," and indeed I would have.

Anyway, me and Mary Jane won the prizes. We won first and second, respectively, in the Slalom Rocket Downhill, in which no kids were injured, no adults filed lawsuits. We also won the booby prize and first prize, respectively, in Getting Back Up The Hill. Of course, I decided at that point that if I could get back to the car successfully, I would make my next order of the day the purchase of some new boots. Boots with cleats.

I did buy boots with cleats. You walk in the snow and you get where you are going. No problem. You are a tractor, a tank. The slipping and sliding and falling down problem is at an end.

This was the first good snowfall we've had in years. Clip this article out. If it ever happens again, and even with global warming it surely must, take it out and re-read it. Remember. Boots with cleats. No saucers. No rolling down the hill like the ten year olds.

The three rules. After that, you're on your own. •

I Predict...

What Will Happen In 2003? We Asked Some People We Know

In 2003...

Adrien Arpel, cosmetics legend:

"I predict... due to global warming the official kick off of the Hamptons season will be pushed back to New Year's Day... and forget St. Bart's: the Hamptons will become the new year-round tropical resort!"

Alec Baldwin, actor/producer:

I predict "that in 2003 Denise Kassel, after much hard work, will succeed at elevating the Hamptons Film Festival into one of the best festivals in the movie business."

"Also, Harvey Weinstein will play for the Artists in the 2003 softball game and will run over Ken Auletta at home plate!"

Theodore Kheel, creator, Earth Pledge Foundation, labor negotiator, public advocate:

"I predict that Saddam Hussein will cave sufficiently to persuade the UN Security Council to vote not to go to war against Iraq and that President Bush will abide by the decision."

"A threat is a useful ploy in negotiation. By itself, it is simply a prediction of what will happen if agreement is not reached."

As Professor Thomas Schelling of Harvard University observed in his perceptive book on The Strategy of Conflict, a threat in negotiation is the exploitation of potential force. It serves its purpose if it produces an agreement. It becomes costly if it has to be carried out. Its effectiveness depends on its credibility and President Bush has certainly convinced the world that he is ready to go to war against Iraq. Some even think he is a little too anxious. If my prediction of adequate Iraq compliance with the UN resolutions is correct, then our President can claim credit for the solution. He would be making a mistake if he didn't but I predict that he will."

LeRoy Neiman, artist:

I predict "cell phones will become considered the height of boorishness!"

Cliff Robertson, actor:

"As a one-time journalist (eons ago), I question friend Dan's desire for another addled actor's opinion about anything. Haven't we all been surfeited with Hollywood's faux geopolitical pundits? However — 'Whatever', as the kids say these days, here is an off-my-weary-top prediction: 2003 will be a tightrope year for America. We are flirting with continued economic doldrums, as well as continued wars of possithe best source I know, my nine-year-old daughter, Mackinley. She predicted that 'technology will make it easier for people to do thins.'

"When asked about the economy, she said, 'I don't know about things like that, only grown-ups do.' I told her if only we had some real grown-ups running the country, maybe they would be able to tell us what to expect."

Mort Zuckerman, Publisher, New York Daily News

I predict "the Yankees will win the World Series, The Daily News will break the most important NY story."

R.O. Blechman, Artist:

I predict "that most Americans will hardly be able to wait for the 2004 elections."

Frazer Dougherty, founder, LTV and Pinewood West Studios:

I predict "first, that here on the East End of Long Island there will begin a wave of human kindness which will tidal wave from East to West in an ever increasing arc engulfing the planet."

"Second, that our outer space neighbors will, because of this new spirit, finally present themselves starting an exciting era for us all."

"And, thirdly, that Dan's Papers will have the exclusive introducing these world events and treat it with continued wisdom and humor."

Tina Fredericks, Realtor:

I predict "Snow and empty beaches in January, jonquils and narcissus in March, steadily rising real estate prices and happy faces on those who secured their rentals early."

"The horrible possibility of war makes everything unpredictable. Let's work on PEACE."

Our outer space neighbors will... finally present themselves starting an exciting era for us all.

ble mass destruction. Our proud country has experienced and survived such threats before, but this time our balancing act becomes more critical. It appears this time we do not have much of a safety net. Let us all strive, work and pray toward a peaceful, reasoned solution."

Robert F X Sillerman, Executive Chairman, SFX Entertainment and Chancellor of LIU's Southampton College:

book review: manhattan on film

By Susan Whitney Simm

Quick. Where did Tom Hanks play "Chopsticks" with his feet in the hit movie Big? Where did Billy Crystal get a whole lot more than corned beef from Meg Ryan in When Harry Met Sally? And where did William Holden and Faye Dunaway have the dinner that sparked their affair in Network?

Answers: F.A.O. Schwarz, Katz' Delicatessen, and Elaine's. What do these places all have in common? The Big Apple, of course.

A few years ago, Manhattan attorney Chuck Katz found himself in a Minneapolis hotel on a business trip with a few hours to spare. Leafing through the typical city guide found in hotel rooms he discovered, to his amazement, that a couple had recently purchased the "real-life" building where Mary Richards (Mary Tyler Moore) had her first apartment in the long-running show. His amazement was not, obviously, over the sale, but over the fact that the building actually EXISTED. It was not a figment of someone's imagination on a Burbank lot.

Though Mr. Katz's schedule in Minneapolis precluded a visit to Mary's old house, the story provided the inspiration for Manhattan on Film, a pocket guide of walking tours through the canyons of the eponymous city. Over the years, New York has served as location for hundreds of movies. What fun it would be "to match up the [film] image with the real-life structure," the author thought. And to research his book, Mr. Katz watched (or re-watched) many films set in Manhattan with the goal of identifying the location of certain scenes. The first result was published in 1999 and the second, Manhattan on Film 2, was released a month or so ago.

The books are pocket-sized and the tour directions easy to follow. Mr. Katz writes in a brisk, amusing style and doesn't miss a beat.

Each tour is set up by neighborhood, and should take no more than two hours. The focus here is on the exterior of locations (many are private residences), but in the case of hotels, restaurants and shops, the choice about whether or not to enter is yours.

Following are samples from tours from both books. I focused on shopping and dining destinations in honor of the holiday season. And besides, what better excuse to enter Harry Winston than to see where Woody Allen filmed William Holden (Edward Norton) choosing an engagement ring for Skylar (Drew Barrymore) in Everyone Says I Love You?

"Some of the most expensive real estate in the world can be found within a short walk of the densely-peopled intersection of Fifth Avenue and 57th Street," writes Mr. Katz in his intro to 57th Street Shopper's Delight (Tour 1, Volume 1). On this tour, you will learn that Mick Dundee (Paul Hogan) "charmed the staff" at the Plaza Hotel in Crocodile Dundee, and that Kevin McAllister (Macaulay Culkin) checked in there at a tender age after having boarded the wrong plane in Home Alone 2: Lost in New York. The fabled hotel also served as a base of operations for Frank White (Christopher Walkin) after his release from prison in King of New York.

Later in the tour, Arthur Bach (Dudley Moore) was smitten as he watched "the sticky fingers" of Linda (Liza Minelli) outside the venerable shopping mecca Bergdorf Goodman in Arthur.

Around the corner from 59th and Third, Bloomingdale's served as the Christmas Eve location where Jonathan (John Cusack) and Sara (Kate Beckinsale) found they had more in common than a pair of gloves in Serendipity (Tour 5, Volume 2).

A short walk downtown and across Central Park South (Tour 7, Volume 1) will bring you to The 21 Club at 21 West 52nd Street where Gordon Gecko (Michael Douglas) met Bud Fox (Charlie Sheen) for a "power lunch" in Wall Street. Bud enjoyed his steak tartar even more after receiving a check for a million dollars from Gordon.

Downtown in the Financial District, Santa Claus (Edmund Gwenn) was on trial at the Supreme Court Building at 60 Centre Street in 1947 (Tour 13, Volume 1). Only a "miracle" could save him, and it came in the form of Susan (Natalie Wood) and lawyer Fred (John Payne) in Miracle on 34th Street.

Whether you're a resident or just visiting, the city really shines this time of year. So after the presents and the dinners and the holiday cheer, stretch your legs with Manhattan on Film. You just might find that New York can be As Good As It Gets.

Manhattan on Film, volumes 1 and 2, are available at Amazon.com and through your local bookseller. Published by Limelight Editions, New York. Call 212-532-5525.

Denise Rich.

You will recall that Alec Baldwin's debut as a director, on the film The Devil and Daniel Webster starring Anthony Hopkins and Jennifer Love Hewitt, went awry over finances. It's done, in the can, and waiting for the producers to straighten out the money they promised to pay the actors so it can go into distribution. Now one of these producers, Jay Berkman, has been indicted on forgery charges, having been accused of providing false information in the name of one of his clients to secure $5.5 million in loans.

Further news about Amagansett's Alec Baldwin. He will co-star in the film Providence with Matthew Broderick, out next year. It will be the directorial debut for Jeff Nathanson, who wrote Catch Me if You Can.

Artist/Sculptor Audrey Flack of East Hampton was elected to the Board of Directors of the CDCH Charter School in Wainscott last month.

Montauk's Edward Albee just goes on and on. His latest play, the award winner The Goat, or Who is Sylvia, closed on Sunday after a sensational run. The last to star in it was Sally Field.

Steven Spielberg's TV mini-series "Taken" was a tremendous success, piling up the largest number of viewers ever for the Sci-Fi network.

The E Channel's popular Celebrity Profile show featured Bridgehampton's Christie Brinkley last week. Her life story included the day she married Southampton architect Peter Cook, who had arranged for all the local churches in Bridgehampton to ring their bells at the moment they both said their "I do's." Problem was that helicopters bearing photographers circling overhead made so much noise they could barely hear each other, let alone the bells.

Who's expected to lineup for signed books, posters and photographs at Vered Gallery-East Hampton? Bert Stern fans and Marilyn Monroe's adoration society that's who. Cindy and Peter Cirlin, Nancy and Jeff Lane, Casey Johnson, Faith Popcorn, B. Smith, Joan Hamburg, Betsey Johnson, Adele De Menil, Cindy Adams and Dan's Paper's editor and publisher, Dan Rattiner. There will be a line out the door if history repeats itself. The event is Vered's launch Saturday, December 21, 6-8 p.m. of Marilyn/Life Size, an incredible exhibit of life size composites and contact sheets of the immortal Marilyn, America's Dream.

Michael and Betty Paraskevas are thinking over offers for The Cheap Show seen locally here on WVVH. Their new puppet show caused quite a stir in Los Angeles. They are considering many ideas...but the goal is to make the series here in the Hamptons with local crews and the soundstage in Wainscott. Stay tuned for even more episodes of their puppet show soon

Educating George

Our President Discovers A Cold War Foreign Policy That Might Work

By Dan Rattiner

George Bush threatened to rain hydrogen bombs down on the heads of the Iraqis the other day. He said if they attack us with biological or chemical weapons, he would launch a full scale nuclear assault. Those were his words.

Many people think this is terrible. I think this is the best news I ever heard. It means that the foreign policy education of George Bush is almost complete. He has re-discovered the terror threat. It was lost about 1990 when the Cold War ended. Now it is found again. Everybody is going to be too terrified to fight anybody about anything and an extended period of peace is at hand. Just like before.

You have to keep in mind that growing up, George Bush never was exposed to Cold War precipice thinking. While the Cold War was going on he lived in privileged circumstances, he snuck through Yale, he went into the oil business, he sold the oil business, he bought a baseball team. When he made his run for governor, it was 1995. The Cold War was already over for five years. And America was the only superpower standing. Now America could do what it wanted. And if Clinton used this power gently and delicately, well, it was lost on George W. Bush. At the beginning of his presidency, Bush made it clear that if America had the power to do something, it got done, no ifs, ands or buts about it. The hell with what the rest of the world would think.

Hint: they hate us.

I will say that Bush came into office with difficulties. There was the election itself. There was a sudden economic downturn. And there were the terrorist attacks of 9/11. What it did, though, was bring Iraq. We're gonna find it, destroy it, and take down that Saddam fella.

What I think has happened is that one after the other, the leaders of the world met with George Bush and explained that this is unacceptable thinking. Before the Cold War, it was true that Might is Right and if you were bigger and stronger you just went in.

But now, well, I think they talked to him about the very thing he had brought up. America was, indeed, the STRONGEST power and the only superpower. But that didn't mean that weapons of mass destruction (MSD as Bush calls them) have all gone away. They are out there. And desperate people could use them. It's not like the 17th century when the white men had gunpowder and the savages had sticks and bows and arrows. It's not even like 1945 when America had the bomb and nobody else did.

And then, I think there were four developments that hastened Bush's learning curve. One was the discovery that North Korea has secretly developed nuclear weapons. (How could they do that?) Two was that bin Laden is not dead. (But we killed him.) Three was the nuclear standoff between India and Pakistan. In the end, nobody fired a shot. And no nukes got dropped. They just scared the hell out of

there in Iraq. We're gonna find it, destroy it, and take down that Saddam fella.

Bush's attitudes to the fore in a hurry.

Yes we will cut down the forests. No we won't be signing any global warming treaty. Let the Palestinians and Israelis solve this thing themselves. Also, look, I won the election, you'll see that it's true when all you people finish counting.

After the triumph over Afghanistan, Bush announced the next place we'd clean up was the Philippines. He did. Then he announced we would be invading Iraq. They've got secret stuff there in each other. (I really thought it was the end.) And four was celebrities and others, particularly mothers, announcing they didn't want their sons, and the Iraqi's sons, killed. (But you HAVE to do that. That's patriotism.)

All these things had to be developments that brought Bush up short. Our military had been deployed to the Persian Gulf and was ready for the word GO. Maybe the word GO wasn't the right word.

Meanwhile, Hussein has been scared out of his wits by this gun-toting cowboy ready to start shooting people. One hopes that he will not notice this subtle shift. Scaring him with words leaves some unexpected wiggle room. BUSH HAS GIVEN HIM PERMISSION TO BEHAVE BADLY. Maybe he'll make a mistake and think there's LOTS of wiggle room.

Or maybe bin Laden will play the card. Bin Laden said if we do anything bad to Iraq he will unleash all sorts of terrorism. So maybe he will. And then we'll blow up Saddam. This thought must be driving Saddam crazy.

And so it all continues. Hussein apologizes to Kuwait. Really didn't intend to make it a province of Iraq. American specialists pore over the 12,000-page document that says Iraq doesn't have anything. Mr. Blix and his UN team of guys in white jeeps go tearing around Baghdad. And our military says just give us the word, but not until January, because we're not quite ready yet.

Until this latest speech, Bush reminded me of a parent who sees his child do something bad, grabs him, and slaps him across the mouth. Now Bush reminds me of a parent who grabs a child by the arm and says, if you do that again I'll make you'd wish you'd never been born.

Trust me. It's really better. Peace is at hand. Maybe.

"Agnes, sit down," the Mayor said. "This is not the People's Court."

Agnes sat.

"We know exactly where the presents go," Santa said. "They go under the tree. And the tree is in front of the fireplace. It's not a problem."

"You'll ring the bell to my front door?" the grouch asked.

"We've been doing this more than two thousand years," Santa said. "Every year it's the same thing. We know exactly what we are doing. And I am not the Fed Ex man."

"This is America," the grouch said.

"Yes it is. And we come down the chimney. We come down the chimney in England, in Iraq, in Afghanistan, everywhere."

"They must have FORTY chimneys on Buckingham Palace," the Mayor said brightly.

"Fifty-two to be exact," Santa said. "And did Princess Di ever not get a present? Did Prince William or Prince Harry ever not get a present? Anybody here hear that they didn't get a present?"

Nobody said a word.

"I'll be back Thursday night," Santa said. "Don't need any flags. Don't need any fires. Just be fast asleep."

"I need a new fire truck," the fire commissioner said.

"I need a new police car," the police chief said.

"I need a new set of curtains for my office," the Mayor said.

"I need a Nintendo 2," the grouch said.

"I know, I know," Santa smiled. And he snapped his fingers, placed a finger aside of his nose and the little man in the audience ran up and leaped onto his shoulders. Then Santa walked to the fireplace there in the Town meeting room, there was a puff of smoke and the two of them were gone.

Nobody said anything for a long, long time. Finally the Mayor spoke.

"Agnes, did you get his autograph?" he asked.

She shook her head, no.

"Well, this meeting is hereby adjourned. Anybody have anything they want to say?"

Nobody had anything they wanted to say. Except Santa. His voice boomed down at them from high in the sky.

"I've got the list for all your kids, too!" he shouted.

And then his voice faded away, and they heard him no more.

As vice president of marketing and communications at New York public television station WLIW21, Laura Savini has a powerful presence at her disposal for the company's all-important pledge drives.

That would be, coincidentally, Laura Savini.

From her humble beginnings more than a decade ago as a publicist at the station's Plainview office, the Long Island native is now one of the most recognizable on-air personalities at WLIW, and increasingly, across the national spectrum of PBS stations. Hers is also a familiar face year-round on the East End, whether spending down time with friends or attending numerous benefits.

Savini is an intriguing mixture of camera-friendly "girl-next-door" beauty (topped off by blue eyes the size of SUV hubcaps), bubbly character, formidable intelligence, business acumen and internationally cultured background. Let's put it this way: the Massapequa Hall of Fame boasts a number of notable inductees, ranging from Jerry Seinfeld to presidential speechwriter Peggy Noonan.

But how many of them can say they've attended an economic forum in China and sipped tea under the Golden Gate Bridge with Tony Bennett?

Probably just one: Ms. Savini.

"I taped a special with Tony in San Francisco in June that's airing this December on WLIW and nationwide on PBS," says Savini, 35. "He performs 'I Left My Heart in San Francisco' at the Fairmont Hotel on Knob Hill — the very first place he ever sang that song. It was a thrilling moment."

Early December also saw the PBS premiere of a Savini-hosted concert special with Irish tenor Ronan Tynan, taped last summer in Dublin. The girl gets around.

Laura Savini was born and raised in Uniondale before moving to Massapequa with her family at the age of 15. "What's important in my life is my faith, my family and my job," says Laura, whose father Anthony — a retired BOCES teacher for children with learning disabilities — passed away in November. Her mother Corinda, a former supervisor at JC Penny, now lives in Bayshore.

"My mom and dad, who were married for fifty years, were the greatest parents in the whole world. I have two older sisters and a younger brother, and my parents were really smart in the way they brought us up. We constantly went to the theater and museums, and we'd travel the East Coast in a big family camper. My parents also wanted us to experience all the different religions within the Christian faith — Dutch Reformed, Pentecostal, Mormon, Jehovah's Witness. We were very open to ideas."

Bitten by the performing bug in high school, Savini studied theater and took the female leads

Who's Here

"I wanted the total opposite of New York City — and boy, did I get it," she says. "I was certainly in the minority; out of 25,000 students, 98% were Mormon. But I met great people, went skiing and hiking in the countryside, got involved in student government and studied very hard."

Graduating with honors in public relations, Savini's professional path was set. She immediately took a job with Pezzano Inc., a New York PR firm specializing in toys and games. Savini recalls: "I helped introduce Pictionary, and worked on the accounts for Trivial Pursuit and Little Golden Books. It was a brilliant company — they were doing Internet promotions in the mid-Eighties!"

Laura was commuting to the city while still living at home with her parents in Massapequa.

"I waitressed on the side one summer at an Irish bar called Katie Daly's — and partied at another bar called Foxes," she reveals somewhat sheepishly. Savini was soon recruited as an account executive by top PR agency Fleischman-Hillard, and ended up managing a team of TV soap opera stars that traveled the country to promote Surf laundry detergent.

"I was working my tail off, and I finally said to myself, 'My whole life is laundry detergent — there's got to be more to it than that!'" Laura remembers.

"That was my awakening. I saw an ad for WLIW; they were looking for a publicist. Even though I knew I would take a huge pay cut — maybe a third of my salary — I thought this was my chance to get into TV.

"I got the job and started off in their Plainview offices in 1989, working on their monthly magazine and doing PR for some of their shows. I was there for two years when I asked to audition to be an on-air personality for the fundraising pledge drives. I was given the go-ahead — but my first audition didn't go very well. Not that it's easy; they put a camera on you and you pretend that you're on the air while adlibbing appeals for money.

"I must have done something right on my second audition not long after, because they gave me the job."

Savini's very first on-air appearance — pledge host between reruns of The Lawrence Welk Show — is hardly the stuff of which memories are made. "But then my on-air responsibilities began increasing, as did my promotional work," says Savini. "Eventually, I was the second-most visible on-air female at the station."

Savini left WLIW in 1995 to work as a publicist for PR giant Dan Klores for one year — "Hard to work for, but so talented, and great accounts. I loved Dan," she says — before returning to the station.

"I was welcomed back in 1996 with a new position — director of communications," Laura re-

"Actually, in my heart I wanted to become the host of my own morning TV show," Savini recalls.

"I wanted the total opposite of New York City — and boy, did I get it... out of 25,000 students, 98% were Mormon."

"But my parents were very logical, and insisted I go to college and study something sensible, learn a skill. I could always take theater on the side."

After taking communications for three semesters at C.W. Post, Savini transferred to Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #229 Don't Give Up The Sleigh...

I believe there are people and things and ideas that don't belong to any one group, they belong to the world. Mother Theresa, Mahatma Gandhi, Albert Einstein, Louis Pasteur, Monet, Gene Kelly, all the great minds and artists, are people who belong to the world. The Pyramids, the Statue of Liberty, the Dome of the Rock, the Great Wall of China, the Wailing Wall are some things that belong to the world. The Bagavad-Gita, the Upanishads, the teachings of Buddha, the Torah and Talmud, the New Testament, the Koran and all spiritually enriching ideas belong to the world. Kwanzaa with it's focus on family, Chanukah with it's theme of rededication to that which is holy, Christmas with it's message of hope, all belong to the world. And I believe, Santa Claus, the person and the idea, belongs to the world too.

We learn about Santa early. Someone who loves us and brings a present. We grow up a little and figure out the Santa conspiracy. As teens, we denounce our precious childhood belief. We become "cool" and pretty much know everything by the time we're twenty. It's beyond comprehension to us how our dumb relatives can lead such screwed up lives. We'll never repeat the mistakes of our parents.

Through our twenties, we shun our families for our friends and lovers. We don't need Santa, families, or the whole holiday mishmosh. We are all-knowing, we are powerful, we are stupid.

We spend our thirties backtracking and correcting all the mistakes we mistakenly made in our twenties. Most of us are married with children and suddenly we hear our mother's words coming out of our mouths. We worry a lot because there is way too much month left at the end of the money.

Our forties are great, aside from the fact that body parts start heading south. Now you know you have all of what you need and much of what you want. You realize that money ebbs and flows in life. Money only increases options. Chicken tastes the same whether it's served on a paper plate or a golden one. And money doesn't insulate anyone from pain, loneliness or despair. Possessions become just "things" and things come and go.

What's really important is time. The days are longer and the years are shorter now. You can never have one minute of your life back, ever. Suddenly, there's not always a "next time." You might as well do what you like while it's still legal. Old dreams come off the shelf. You make the time to restore the car. You drink better wine.

You let go of grudges because while you're holding a grudge, they're out dancing. Your own opinion is what matters most, finally! Is it really going to matter what someone else thought of anything you did in a hundred years? Nope. You've matured enough to know that you're not better than anyone else, but damn if you ain't just as good.

You arrange your life to rediscover your very own still amusing and still annoying family. Suddenly the fact that Aunt Ida still uses that cracked, chipped teapot she got in Arizona on her honeymoon in 1942, doesn't bother you like it used to.

That she gave her daughter the pretty new teapot you gave her to replace that old relic is now understandable. What was important was the tea and the time, the pot was just packaging.

Families and holiday become as important as when you were six. By now Santa has made a dramatic comeback in your life and you meet him again for the very first time, and he's even grander than you remembered. He doesn't dye his hair. He stays married to a woman who's the same age he is. He's fat and wears red, so you can't miss him. He loves his job. He decides to be happy even though he faces a long night freezing his jingle bells off in an open sleigh. He's not impressed with technology, he's keeping the sleigh and his way of doing things. You find you need Santa more as an adult than you ever did as a child. You've seen enough tragedy and not enough miracles. But Santa is an annual miracle you can depend on. Santa lets us pause and reconnect with all our Christmas' past.

As soon as we hear Bing Crosby sing "White Christmas", we hear the sound of our own back door, the smell of our own pillow, echoes of our parent's voices. We'd give anything to be six once more and bound down the stairs on Christmas morning and see our disheveled parents in rumpled robes sitting on the couch watching us through a flurry of flying ribbons and paper.

Nothing you need now can be brought down a chimney in a sack. Still, it's alright somehow. And as for me, I no longer need Santa's presents, but God above, how I still need his presence...Happy Holidays to you! Your Gal, Sal.

calls. "More importantly, my general manager thought we should add a weekly show about local artists, performers and personalities, and I was picked to host it.

"The show was Metro Guide, and it's still running today. Through the years, my guests have included everyone from Broadway stars, to actors like Ben Gazzara and Stefanie Powers, to vocalists like Davey Jones of the Monkees and Daniel 'The Singing Policeman' Rodriguez, to Gov. Pataki."

Savini moved to a Manhattan apartment to coincide with her 1998 promotion to vice president of marketing and communications, which included a new office out of WLIW's New York City headquarters.

In the years since, Savini's profile has been rising meteorically, with WLIW producing more and more fundraising shows for PBS to air nationally during membership drives — and Laura finding herself more and more in demand to host them. She's also been loaned out recently by WLIW as on-air host for shows on PBS stations in Texas and Atlanta.

"This past summer was especially busy," reports Savini. "Besides filming the Tony Bennett and Ronan Tynan specials, I was in Guadalajara, Mexico to host a mariachi concert that airs next May, and I spent two weeks in Italy taping episodes of a new series called Destination: Wine Country, which is currently being shopped around PBS and cable stations."

And it's not just on our shores that Laura Savini has been making a name for herself. A former president of the National Association of Italian-American Women, Savini became one of only seven women from the U.S. invited to participate at the 2001 Global Forum: Women and Power conference in Taiwan.

"I was invited by Annette Lu, Taiwan's Vice President," says Savini. "It was a fascinating ten days, a leadership conference for up-and-coming women in the Pan-Asian countries."

"It was also a bit tricky, because President Bush was talking at the time about giving arms to Taiwan — and Mainland China was very upset."

Though free time is obviously at a premium for Laura, much of it is spent on the East End — just as it was years ago.

"When I was in high school, my best friend had an uncle who lived in Quogue," she recalls. "We used to take trips out east and go wild at Hot Dog Beach."

"A good friend of mine has a house now on Dune Road in Westhampton, and we went dancing at Cupsogue Beach this summer when a great local Hamptons band called No Exit was playing there. It brought back memories of the old days."

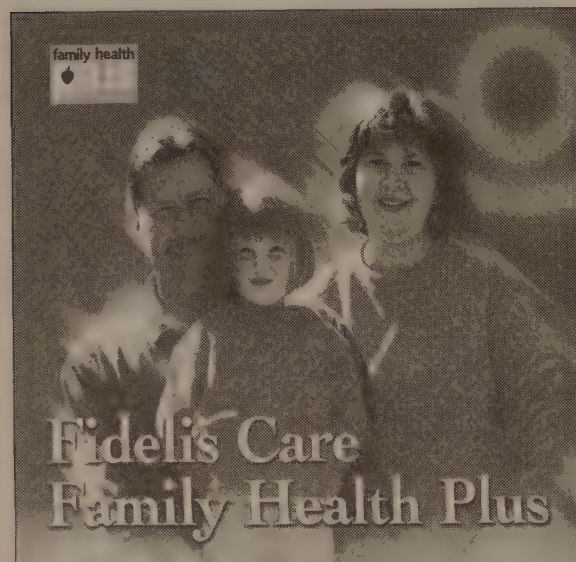

"I like to go biking and rollerblading on Dune Road, and I have a cousin who lives in Sagaponack, where I go kayaking on Georgica Pond. I also love to shop for clothes and antiques in East Hampton and Bridgehampton, dine at the American Hotel, sip wine at Channings Daughters."

Savini is also a mainstay at numerous benefits and fundraisers, including James Beard's Chefs & Champagne, Steven Spielberg's Shoah Foundation, and the Bridgehampton polo matches.

"I attended a recent Democratic fundraiser at East Hampton Airport, and Bill Clinton made a point of coming over to shake my hand four times," says Savini. "Hilary was there, too."

Half-jokingly, Laura Savini sums up her busy existence this way: "I date, travel and drink champagne. Actually, I continue to be very much focused on my career. I've been very fortunate in how things have turned out for me, but I've also worked extremely hard to make it happen — and I've always visualized my goals."

"Visualization is the most powerful tool available, but it is extremely underutilized — I even use it to visualize parking spaces on the Upper West Side!"

Dan's North Fork Behind The Lens

If A Picture Is Worth A Thousand Words, North Fork Photojournalist Judy Ahrens Has Plenty To Say

"Fourth of July," Greenport, 1990

"Three Chiefs," Greenport, 1984

"Splash," Greenport, 1984

By Susan Whitney Simm

The North Fork is many things to many people. To some it is farms, parades, and yard sales. To others it is vineyards and galleries, and sailing on the sound. People still wave on country roads that have remained, miraculously, country roads, and the shops, though delightful, are still more utilitarian than posh.

It is a place where, when someone says they read it in The Times, they mean, of course, The Suffolk Times.

But above all, the North Fork is a place of breathtaking natural beauty. A place, for better and for worse, in great transition.

Photographer Judy Ahrens has spent the last twenty-five years documenting this world. After graduating from the University of Nebraska School of Journalism, she left her hometown of Lincoln and, after a visit to the North Fork, returned a year later, in 1977, and began working for The Suffolk Times. In the years since, she has recorded on film not only nearly every newsworthy event, but has caught people at work and at play in their everyday lives. Her book, The North Fork, contains 102 photos that have appeared in The Times, many as award-winning covers.

"This book is the fulfillment of a very old dream," writes the author in the introduction to her book. "One of my goals was to try to sum up what I love about the North Fork, and in doing so create a book that people who visit here might want to take home with them... But first and foremost, this book is for people who are the North Fork. No matter how many times I've snapped a farmer in his field, I still bring my car to a screeching halt when I see yet another picturesque farm scene."

That ability to always see something familiar in a new light is evident in all of Judy's work, whether she's documenting a public event or capturing a magic moment. The North Fork, a beautiful black-and-white coffee table volume, is filled with country scenes both startling and ordinary, but throughout there is a powerful emotional undercurrent. The passion of the artist for her work is there on every page.

"Coming from a very farm-oriented locale and having farmers on both sides of my family, I instantly fell in love with the North Fork and its rural landscape when I visited in the mid-seventies," said Judy recently.

"Potato Farmers John and Walter Krupski," Cutchogue, 1983

That love is reflected in the images that appear in The North Fork. In "A Touching Moment," a mother reunion of a Greenport High School class; and "White Wine" is a bucolic snow scene of grapevines in Peconic.

Judy has received much recognition for her work, including the prestigious New York Press Association's Photographer of the Year award, which she's won four times. But the winning of awards is clearly not what motivates this natural artist. Her spontaneous portraits of young and old capture and celebrate the innate beauty of life. Life beyond the much-admired air-brushing and makeup techniques of fashion photographers. The work fascinates, simply, because it is real.

Apart from the scenic beauty, "I suppose what I love most about the North Fork is its unpretentiousness," muses the author. "It has always been a very down-to-earth place — people greatly concerned with their 'image' are hard to find here."

They are, however, getting easier to find these days as the atmosphere of this rural community changes.

"Luckily my job with the paper has given me a chance to document the North Fork's lovely rural character, and also, sadly, its changing face as development has begun to force its way in," said Judy, who hopes, as all who live here do, that that character will not disappear entirely.

It is, of course, easier to become complacent than to greet the challenge of each day with enthusiasm. But as long as we have artists like Judy Ahrens in our midst, we are always reminded that the most fascinating people and things in the world are the ones we see every day. As usual, the thing we seek most is right there in front of us.

Judy Ahrens — whose book "The North Fork" is available at Peconic Bay Winery, Burton's Books in Greenport and La Ferme de la Mer in Mattituck — is a staff photographer for The Suffolk Times. She lives in a beautiful Victorian house in Greenport with her husband, Hugh Prestwood, a songwriter whose song "The Suit" was recently recorded by James Taylor, who performed it at a concert in Lincoln, Nebraska, on December 3.

touches her son's name on a Vietnam memorial on Shelter Island; "White Wash" captures clothes forgotten on a line in the snow; "The Cultivator" is an elderly farmer with his antique equipment in his field; in "Graveside," a man prepares a grave for a teenage driver; "Class of '34" is a group portrait of a 50th

Best of the Best Revisited: Holiday Recommendations

Congratulations once again to the North Fork winners of the wine categories in our annual Best of the Best contest here at Dan's Papers: to Paumanok Vineyards for its 2000 Grand Vintage Cabernet Sauvignon, to Pellegrini Vineyards for its 1998 Vintner's Pride Encore, to Lieb Cellars for its 1994 Blanc de Blanc, to Martha Clara for its 2000 Estate Reserve Chardonnay, to Peconic Bay Winery for its 2000 Riesling, to Corey Creek for its Domaines CC Rosé, to Bedell Cellars for its 1998 Reserve Merlot, to Macari Vineyards for its 2001 Sauvignon Blanc and to Jamesport Vineyards for its 2000 Sauvignon Blanc, to Pugliese Vineyards for its Raffaello White Port, and to Lenz for overall vintage excellence. Wonderful wines – and gifts! – all.

But what about our other local wine varietals, namely Pinot Blanc, Cabernet Franc, Pinot Noir, Viognier?

First, Pinot Blanc. Lieb Cellars continues to inspire and its 1999 Pinot Blanc is no exception. (Also try Lieb's delightful Blanc de Blanc, perfect for holiday celebrating.) An honorable mention also goes to Castello di Borghese for its very drinkable – and reasonably priced – 2000 Pinot Blanc.

There is little doubt that Schneider Vineyards would have won the Cab Franc category with its 1999 Cabernet Franc, but I am honestly torn between it and Paumanok's current Grand Vintage version, which is unfortunately sold out. But the regular 2000 Cabernet Franc is still available and it is excellent.

Viognier? Easy. Bedell Cellars' 2000. Fabulous and, of course, long gone.

And then there is Pinot Noir, not known as the "heartbreak grape" for nothing. A challenging wine to make anywhere, but the hands-down winner is The Old Field's 1997 Pinot. Never heard of The Old Field? You will.

May you have wonderful holidays and a happy, healthy New Year. Until then...Cheers.

Coming Soon To A Theatre Near You... Love (Lane) Story?

The North Fork isn't East Hampton. Yet. But I've already overheard a disgruntled employee of a shop on Mattituck's Love Lane exclaim, "Well, I wasn't asked to be in the film!" Can Steven Spielberg be far behind?

Last Monday, a cold rainy day, I got a call from my friend, artist Max Moran. "They're making a movie in Mattituck!" he said. When I arrived, a small film crew had drawn a crowd on the main street, weather notwithstanding. It turns out that award-winning indie film director Douglas Buck, along with his co-producer Rita Romanino (both of Voice in the Head Productions, an independent Bourguignon, the movie-star handsome co-owner of the Village Market.

"This is a forty-minute short," explained Ms. Romanino. "It is the third part of a trilogy whose themes deal with dysfunctional families, and Prologue is about a young girl who is violently attacked and comes home a year later to confront her attacker. It's thematically about overcoming obstacles, about forgiveness, about denial." Any Jurassic Park analogies? Hardly. More like Schindler's List. This is serious stuff, the stuff of international film festival awards.

Buck's previous films in the trilogy include Cutting Moments and Home, both of which have screened in Europe to critical acclaim at the Helsinki Love & Anarchy Festival, as well as at festivals in Montreal and Germany. Buck, who is funding the films himself so far, is hoping Prologue will make into the big festivals held in Toronto and Berlin.

So remember us, Doug, when you're accepting that Oscar. And who knows. Sleepless in Southold? Sounds like it could be big...
—S.W.Simm

Director Douglas Buck and crew on the set in Mattituck film company) were in the midst of filming the latest in a trilogy of films, Prologue.

Veteran actors David Thornton, who just finished starring in a movie with Denzel Washington and who is married to Cyndi Lauper, and William Mahoney, who just finished making a made-for-TV movie with Vanessa Redgrave, mingled with local residents on the "set" next to the Village Market. Mattituck residents Claire Spark and Katherine Hart both had walk-on parts, as did Michael

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

Drive at any speed on Germany's autobahn in any car, be it a Fiat or a Porsche. It's definitely more fun in a Porsche. Listen to the high RPM rip of a Ferrari V-12, a Porsche air-cooled six, or a Japanese superbike. Try to hear the idle of a 1951 Ford flathead V-8, with the hood open. This famous flathead, perhaps the quietest engine ever built, is sold by the millions in bargain priced Fords.

See a beautifully restored 1965 Porsche 356, a 1949 Jaguar XK120 or a 1962 Jaguar XK-E. Salivate over every line of a 1965 Ferrari 275 GTL Lusso or a 1962 Alfa Romeo Guilia Sprint Speciale. At a car show, come upon a 1936 Cord Supercharged Phaeton or a 1939 Lincoln Zephyr coupe. Stand between a Raymond Lowey designed '53 Studebaker Starlight coupe and a '40 Ford coupe, two of the most beautiful American cars ever built.

Be delighted upon viewing the Mazda Miata, the Audi TT Coupe, the Beetle, Porsche Boxter, Ford Thunderbird and Austin, er, BMW Mini Cooper. Happy times are here again.

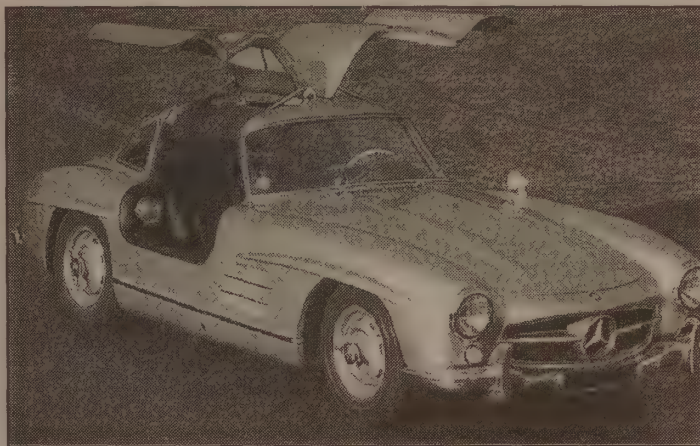

Smile at the diminutive and quirky Citroen 2 CV, Fiat 500, BMW Isetta, Amphicar, Morgan Trike and, last but not least, the original 1959 Austin Mini.

There was nothing better than rocketing around the Bridgehampton race track. (History will not look favorably upon this famous track's disappearance.) At the Lime Rock Park race circuit in Connecticut, I raced a borrowed Ferrari 275 GTB against a Ferrari GTO, and watched in awe as the GTO lapped past my GTB like I was driving a Fiat!

Every car enthusiast owes it to themselves to drive a '60s Mini Cooper S, any Lotus Super Seven powered with any engine and, if you can, find a Renault 5 Turbo to wrap around some back roads in Bridgehampton.

Another amazing drive is any '50s Citroen DS or ID model sedan. There simply has never been, and probably never will be, a car that drives as well and uniquely as this big French "clam". Another wacko frogger is the Citroen 2CV. This and the Italian Fiat 500, as they say in the monasteries, are both more fun to drive than a barrel full of monks. With twenty-five fire breathing horsepower each, it's virtually impossible to get a speeding ticket in these cars – even in the Hamptons.

'55 Mercedes Gullwing coupe

At the other end of the spectrum are the howlingly horrific rides. Ford 427 Cobras and big block Corvettes are sado-masochistic machines with their ground pulsating whompy-whomp idle and firewall engine heat that turn one's toes into broiled salmon. All of this is accompanied by the rancid scent of unburnt high octane gasoline that has been fed by OPEC approved Holly double Pumpers.

These cars accelerate so brutally that one uses the steering wheel not only to steer, but as a brace—not unlike the one on a roller coaster. Hang on for dear life.

whiplash is common. Hurt me, hurt me—it feels so good when you stop. If you want something more sedate, drive a Dodge Viper.

Motorcycles are cheap thrills. At eighty miles per hour on a bike you feel like you're going to get killed at any minute, especially if you spot a Mercury Gran Marquis with Florida plates and hats on the rear shelf coming up fast in your rear view mirror.

An early MG or Healy 100 with the windshield folded flat at high speed, 75 mph in these cars, gives one the thrill of a buzzing open-cockpit biplane.

Just sitting in some cars that are standing still causes a heart to flutter. The view down the hood of an early Jaguar XK-E is pure automotive sculpture. Reaching up and pulling down the counter balanced door of a '55 Mercedes Gullwing coupe is a study in creative engineering and legendary build quality. Woodwork on the steering wheels and facias of Bentleys and Rollers, old and new, mimic the perfect joiner work in the finest yachts. Remember the painted dashboards of the early Porsches and Alfas, with jewel-like instruments? One could spend joyous hours just polishing them to perfection.

It could be said that they don't make cars like they used to. No. They never will. They are trying hard with the retros, but cars today are encumbered by high prices for anything interesting. There is also too much focus-group-corporate-planning involved in today's cars. Marketing seems to be more important than product. Less chances are being taken today, and the automotive soul is suffering. If you love cars, you know what I mean.

Bob Gelber, an automotive journalist living in the Hamptons, appears regularly on television as an automotive expert. You can email him at remsenburg@aol.com.

Off To New York... By David Lion Rattiner

What if?

This is something that more than one person has talked to me about regarding an invasion of Iraq. It is something that people think about but never want to admit. I also think that many people think that this idea is just a bonus that the U.S. and President Bush would get out of a war.

First let me give you an example of what I am talking about. Let's say that you have just graduated from college and are off in the world ready to look for a well paying job that you enjoy. You make phone calls to friends of your family, you call contacts you have met through school, you check out the companies Web sites and the new job Web sites where you can send your resume across the globe at the speed of light. After you go through all of this, a couple of weeks later somebody will call you and ask you to come in for an interview. Or at least this is what we hope they do.

You now have a couple of weeks to prepare for this interview and the job. So with out hesitating, you head out to the nearest Banana Republic and lay down a lot of money to pay for some nice suits, ties and shoes. You buy all of these items with a smile on your face because you now know that if you get the job you are ready.

Your new expensive wardrobe, at this point, is now in your closet. Maybe here and there you wear the dress shirt on a date or to a party, but the entire suit will never be fully used until the interview date comes around. So anxiously you wait for the time to come when you can unleash your entire arsenal of fancy clothes at the office.

Let me give you another example:

You are in a Hummer dealership and are checking out the new SUV for the winter season. As you pass by the monstrosity of a vehicle your mouth begins to salivate. You don't care about the ozone layer at this point. You don't care about beach erosion. What you care about is how awesome it is going to be when it snows and you can push the button on the console that makes it elevate seven inches off of the ground allowing it to crash through any barrier in your way. Five minutes later, you lighten your wallet and buy the tank and all of its ridiculous gadgetry. It even has reinforced military steel doors just in case some pesky teenager hurls a snowball the size of Cleveland at your driver side door at 1,000 meters per second.

In your mind this all seemed completely reasonable to happen and the day that it snows half an inch you hit the elevate button and you rumble along through the streets with a smile. You sit there and you pray that someone will throw a snowball at your door. You are constantly hoping that this will happen just so you can see what your car will do. In fact, you wouldn't even mind it if somebody fired a paintball at your door. Now you are anxious to see what would happen then.

Let me give you another example:

You are a teenager and have just got your hands on fifty dollars worth of fire crackers. Instead of firing them off one by one you decide to tie all of the fuses of each firecracker together and then have another fuse leading to all of the tied fuses. You then get out some matches and light the fuse. Slowly as the fuse gets closer and closer your eyes grow wider and wider. You really can't wait to see what it is that is about to happen.

Now let's get back to Iraq:

All too many of us are talking about a war with Iraq and saying how we would whip their ass into oblivion. How we would get to utilize the army because the land is so flat, the Navy because of the Persian Gulf, the Air Force because of allied bases, and spies because what's a good war without a bunch of spies running around?

Too many of us are anxiously awaiting a war and wondering why it hasn't happened yet. Too many of us can't wait to see what are new Stealth Fighter can do and what our Special Forces can do. We can't wait to see more robotic drones flying around the Middle East being navigated via satellite. Too many of us are anxious to see how accurate our new weapons will hit and how loud their explosions will be. We are all just sort of wondering what if? What if we actually got to use all of this cool stuff we got to use?

Let me give you just one final example.

You are in a kitchen at your friends house and on the top shelf is a bottle of iodine with a skull and cross bones label on it. On the bottom of the label reads in big letters POISON. Suddenly your mind has a quick thought. I wonder what would happen...

Holiday Shop 'Til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Well, I don't know about you, but I have not finished my holiday shopping yet. We are so busy here at Dan's I hardly have to take a breath. So let's see what is going on at the shops...

Starting out in Sag Harbor, you won't believe the sale at Christmas By The Bay on Long Island Avenue and Main Street. Now is the time to stock up and $ave, $save, $ave...Everything you loved and wanted before Christmas is now 25% to 50% off as of December 27th through January 4th. Everything you can imagine, including fancy gifts, holiday candles, throws, fine china, guest towels, armoire furniture, table runners, tree roping, tree lights, tree skirts, nutcrackers, ornaments and Santa's of all kinds are included in this sale. The store will be open on Christmas eve for last minute shoppers. Take advantage of this sale, it's a good one...Call 725-2474.

Also on Main Street at Devonian look for fabulous unique gifts such as Kim's famous signs. My daughter Michele bought custom signs for every one of her nieces and nephews for their rooms. I especially love my Sag Harbor and Bridgehampton signs that I have hanging in my house. They can also be used outdoors. Have fun here; there are so many great gift items to choose from.

I love the drive to Sag Harbor, especially when I am listening to classical music along the way. Things always seem calmer and more beautiful when you are listening to Tosca or Madame Butterfly. And if you are wondering where to get that classical music lover friend or family member the CD, I know just where you will find them. I am also sorry to see this shop close because of business decline. Ned Parkhouse on Main Street near Fishers, is still packed to the rafters with great gift buys including CD's along with his knowledge about the music industry. He has one of the best selections on the East End believe it or not! Look for some recent re-releases on CD of the early recordings of Tosca and Madame Butterfly with the glorious Renata Tabaldi, for only $17.95. If you've been in this shop you will understand what I mean and if you haven't, you owe yourself a visit to this charming little music store. Tell him I sent you...

Roeloffs Optical located on Montauk Highway in Bridgehampton and in East Hampton is having a special offer until December 31 on holiday gift certificates. You will get a 50% discount on all holiday gift certificates on eyewear, excluding contact lenses. Eyewear is a fashion statement, why not get 50% off and get two pair. That's what I did.

On my way to East Hampton I just had to stop at Elegant John at the Red Horse Plaza on Montauk Highway in East Hampton to see what all the fuss was about with fabulous the silk blankets. Holy cow, they feel just like cashmere and look like cashmere and they are literally flying out the door. They come in taupe and cream and just to give you an idea on the price; Queen $179.99 and King are $189.99. Do not pass this little luxury up.

East Hampton's Fish's Eddy on Main Street is having a "Holiday Sale" with 20% off everything in the entire store. Wow! Now is the time to stock up and get all those fabulous serving dishes and accessories for the holidays. The sale is at the East Hampton location only. This is my kind of store; this is my kind of sale! Westhampton Beach, here I come!

If you are looking for the Murphdog (Maltese look-a-like) or Pocket Pups to present as a special Christmas gift, Jenna Robbins of Harley's Angels Inc., Professional Training for Dogs and Their Owners in Quogue, has quite a selection that are ready to go for the holidays. They are under five pounds and the cutest little critters you ever did see. The pocket pups (Pomeranians, poodles, Maltese, Yorkers come in different individual colors to boot! Give her a call at 653-3955.

Holiday Keepsake Gifts – Please (And Thanks) Forever

This year make one of your holiday gifts a keepsake that will please long after the celebration is over.

"Jewelry, watches and fine giftware are timeless, make a long-lasting impression and can be found at incredible values at holiday time," says Jan Rose, vice president of Rose Jewelers in Southampton and Patchogue.

A first piece of jewelry for a child, diamond earrings for a woman, whimsical cuff links for men and beautiful yet functional gifts for friends, relatives, teachers and business associates, are a few gift ideas. A classic "add-a-pearl" necklace starts with one 6 mm. cultured pearl. Delicate lockets, bracelets and anklets can be personalized with engraving. Or, charm a girl with the "Sweetie" bracelet designed in silver rounds like Necco candy wafers with a flip flop charm. A silver keyring is topped with a brightly colored gum-ball. Both are from Rose's exclusive Links of London boutique.

Every kid will like the unisex stainless steel watches from Swiss Army, Michele and Rose Jewelers own brand with their fashion-savvy straps in basketball orange and bright candy colors.

For him, cuff links are the enduring classic that can be personalized with engraving and come the shapes of footballs, baseball mitts, sailboats, flippers and air tanks, golf bags, cell phones, ducks (the front and the rear end) or "Buy" and "Sell" for budding Wall Streeters.

The silver-plated mouse and mouse pad are beautiful yet functional gifts. Give a hand-painted glass martini set with frolicking monkeys designed by Lynn Chase and a percentage of the sale is donated to the Chase Wildlife Foundation.

Irresistible for its dazzling color is the "Confetti" collection from Color Story by Robert Lesser that combines citrine, pink tourmaline, amethyst and peridot stones. Rose's specially-priced diamond jewelry makes it possible to give a truly luxurious gift. For a December 25th engagement go to the jeweler now for the ring.

Crystal Cruises: Exploring The Orient

From the emperors and dynasties to the silks and spices, luxury cruise specialist Crystal Cruises returns to Asia in 2003 with four diverse itineraries, each featuring a complimentary three-night land program in Beijing.

This March through May 2003, the award-winning Crystal Harmony will journey to 14 ports of call – including a maiden call in Nagoya, Japan – in four countries including China, Japan, Taiwan and South Korea. Highlights include overnight stays in Hong Kong, Shanghai and Kobe.

All four of Crystal Harmony's 2003 Asia itineraries feature a three-night land program in Beijing showcasing the Forbidden City, Tian An Men Square, the Great Wall, the Summer Palace, Sacred Alley, and a private dinner at the Great Hall of the People. The all-inclusive "Adventures in Beijing" is offered as a pre- or post-cruise component of the cruise, depending on itinerary selected, and features all meals, accommodations, sightseeing and transportation, portage, gratuities and tour escort.

"Crystal Cruises strives to offer the most seamless and memorable of vacations. Through their travel agent, travelers can conveniently reserve their air flights, pre- and/or post-cruise land programs and luxury cruise to the most exotic of destinations with the comfort of knowing they'll be taken care of by an experienced Crystal Cruises' team each step of the way. Today, service is the ultimate luxury," says Adam Leavitt, senior vice president, marketing.

Crystal Harmony's 2003 Asia series includes:

Cathay Odyssey: March 23-April 6; 14 days; Yokohama, Japan to Beijing, China. Visiting Kobe (overnight), Hiroshima, and Kagoshima, Japan; and Shanghai, China.

Kingdoms of Jade & Pearls: March 31-April 15; 15 days; Beijing to Hong Kong, China. Visiting Qingdao and Shanghai (overnight), China; Nagasaki, Japan; Taipei, Taiwan; and concluding with an overnight in Hong Kong.

Kong.

Treasures of the Orient: April 15-30; 15 days; Hong Kong to Beijing, China. Featuring an overnight in Hong Kong; port calls in Taipei, Taiwan; Okinawa, Japan; Seoul, South Korea; and a two-night stay in Shanghai, China.

Kingdoms of Asia: April 24-May 9; 15 days; Beijing, China to Yokohama, Japan. Featuring a maiden call in Nagoya, Japan; with visits to Qingdao and Shanghai (overnight), China; and Nagasaki and Osaka, Japan.

While onboard enrichment lecturers will reveal the cultural, historical and political nuances of the region, Crystal's team of land program experts is assembling an extensive collection of optional day tours designed to provide a first-hand appreciation for this ancient continent.

Guests wishing to extend their Orient experience may choose from a collection of pre- and post-cruise land programs and hotel stays offered in addition to the Beijing package. The five-night "Yangtze Splendor" journey commences in Beijing and includes the riverfront city of Chongqing and a Yangtze River cruise through the dramatic Three Gorges. "Faces of Modern China" is a comprehensive five-night program to Xi'an and Guilin from Hong Kong featuring the Terra Cotta Warriors and the enduring magic of the Li River. Optional pre- and post-cruise hotel stays are available at Tokyo's Imperial Hotel (member Leading Hotels of the World) and Hotel Inter-Continental Hong Kong.

With Perfect Harmony pricing of up to 42% off previously published fares, the 14- and 15-day itineraries, including the Beijing land program, start at $3,895 and $4,245 per person, double occupancy, respectively. Crystal's 2003 "Best of Everything" savings certificates offer an additional $500 savings per person.

At 50,000-tons and carrying only 940 guests, the award-winning Crystal Harmony is one of the most spacious and luxurious vessels cruising the world. Its unique size in the luxury market allows for smooth sailing and a wide range of innovative facilities, generous amenities and elegant accommodations. The Six-Star rated floating resort features grand lounges, a lavish spa outfitted in accordance with the principles of Feng Shui, extensive exercise facilities, complimentary golf, yoga and Pilates instruction, the only Caesars Palace at Sea Casino afloat, the innovative Computer University@Sea, offering 24-hour e-mail and internet access as well as hands-on instruction, expansive decks, two pools, gourmet dining including Japanese and Italian specialty restaurants, and exquisitely appointed staterooms, more than half of which offer private verandahs.

Crystal Cruises is booked exclusively through professional travel agents. For a complimentary brochure on Asia or any other worldwide destination, please call 800-820-6663. Visit the luxury line's website at www.crystalcruises.com.

Enjoy The Holidays In Style

Worried about last minute gift ideas? A visit to Style Bar Day Spa in Sag Harbor will eliminate the hassle. They have a large assortment of unique lines from Bloom, Lucky Chick, Dirty Girl and Philosophy to Agent Provateur. Style Bar specializes in custom-made gift baskets to suit your needs and taste.

Style Bar is best known for their beauty care services, and this season marks an entirely new level of standards, services and unparalleled offerings. A marriage of quality products and superior service allows for nothing but the best. I regularly patronize the Style Bar for their great pedicures. After a long hard week of work, what could be more relaxing then a great pedi. Sitting back in their comfy massage chairs while your feet receive an amazing revival is such a treat and stress reliever that the experience will make you a repeat customer.

Style Bar's latest addition is their private room. In this tranquil, intimate setting, one can relax in complete seclusion and anonymity. This was prompted by some clients who prefer to be alone in a quiet area while they receive their beauty treatments. Yet another idea for that special Christmas gift: a day of beauty in the privacy of your own room sounds ideal for Mom, sis or significant other. Select your own music to listen to or bring a great book to read and just sit back and enjoy.

Another great offering that the Style Bar provides that is unique is their spa parties. They will come to you for that special occasion designed especially for several clients at the same time. This girls' night out, or day in, will cure the problem of a crowded and hectic spa or salon.

Massages are very popular as well. You can get Swedish full body and sport massages. They also offer a hot stone massage, reflexology, shiatsu, a four hand massage and body treatments. I can guarantee that anyone fortunate enough to get a massage here will not regret it.

Haven't heard of Microdermabrasion and Endermologie? We all want to feel and look our best and the stages of getting older can make us question our sense of beauty. Straight from France, the Endermologie treatment is formulated to reduce the appearance of cellulite by using a deep stimulating massage that increases blood flow to the trouble areas helping to redefine your body shape within weeks of your first visit. Microdermabrasion is a crystal power peel. This process helps by eliminating signs of sun damage, fine lines and uneven skin tones.

Bio-Sculpt is an intensive facial system that works wonders on the toning of your skin. Another choice you may want to try is Youth Light, a photo rejuvenation that enables your skin to look younger and healthier by erasing fine lines. The preservation of our youthful glow will help us travel down this path more gracefully.

Style Bar has a licensed nurse on staff as well. Eva will help you examine your life style and eating habits and their affects on your skin, hair and well being. We sometimes don't realize how our diet impacts our overall health, which directly transfers to our outward appearance.

The Style Bar is a very special establishment that provides excellence in beauty care. Stop in and enjoy what they have to offer or treat a friend or family member for the holidays or special occasion.

Give Hand-Made Holiday Gifts With Local History

This holiday give gifts that have a history and are handcrafted by local Shinnecock craftspeople. Wampum earrings designed by Herman Quinn are made of white and purple clam shell. Clam and whelk shells were the sources of "wampum" that was often used by Native American tribes for ceremonies, jewelry and sealing agreements.

Contemporary silver jewelry inspired by the past embedded with turquoise and other semi-precious stones are great values.. A small soft doll crafted with cedar dressed in traditional Eastern Woodlands regalia by Marion Phillips can be hung as an ornament or given as a gift or a stocking stuffer.

They are available at the Shinnecock Nation Cultural Center and Museum gift shop located on the Shinnecock Indian Reservation, Montauk Highway and West Gate Road, Southampton. The gift shop is open Friday through Sunday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., 287-4923. Come and meet the local craftspeople at the second annual Winter Arts Festival, on Saturday and Sunday, December 7 and 8, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Museum. Visitors will enjoy craft demonstrations and refreshments. Family activities will be provided both days. Admission is free.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

Alternate Spaces: "Naked" at Glenn Horowitz

The last two "Art Commentaries" featured art in various settings: a courtroom and a restaurant. Both venues presented problems for the works on the wall. Not so for the exhibit at East Hampton's Glenn Horowitz Bookseller. First, the intellectual atmosphere established by a bookstore seems to fit an art display. Second, browsers use the same kind of concentration that viewers at a gallery employ. There's also a reverence given to books, which is similar to art works. And there are few distractions, Speaking of distractions, the title "Naked" is as provocative as they come. There's more to this show than one can determine at first glance. In fact, a common comment might be: "We don't get it. The art is good, but why are there abstract works which are not obviously showing any skin." (Peter Begley's "Laundry Line" is a good example.)

Showing skin is not the goal of this exhibit, curated effectively by Graham Leader. Exploring the realm of nakedness is. Just as the film "Naked," directed by Mike Leigh, had no real nudity but revealed the authentic meaning of nakedness instead – to bare one's self or one's soul – so, too, does the current show explicate a concept. This concept is not a pornographic one (as is "nudity") but a philosophical one. Simply put, the display is more than its subject matter. It is truly a thematic exhibit in all the right ways.

Naturally, there are the traditional perspectives on nakedness, notably by Mapplethorpe and Muybridge, although the latter photographer celebrated the male body as subject of documentary studies for the newly developed motion picture camera. In this way, his works were scientific, not political like Mapplethorpe's male figures.

Ms. Alpern's nude photographs are also political in another way, using the female body as signifiers of nature and the woman's role in the cosmos, an expanded interpretation of her recent nude pictures at the Mertz Gallery.

Adam Fuss's photogram featuring a naked baby in a tub of water may also be considered political: nakedness is all-pervasive, connoting diverse demographics. The most direct use of ideology, however, is Michael Scarpa's magazine collage dealing with World War I victims. Death is nakedness at its most primitive level; man's inhumanity to man is death's most unadorned demeanor.

"Naked" will be on view until February 3.

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Oh, where to go for New Year's Eve? Such a dilemma. Perhaps I can help. First I'll tell you where I'm going to be, Basilico in Southampton. They are having a great party for only $20. This includes complementary hors d'oeuvres, drink specials, music, and raffles all night long starting at 9 p.m. Call 283-7987 for more info. Now, let's stay in Southampton for a bit and talk about 75 Main. They will have special Moet and Chandon bottle prices, Complimentary Hors'dourves and a Champagne toast at midnight. DJ Tony E will be spinning tunes to ring in the New Year all night. Call 283-7575.

Shall we travel down the road a bit to Watermill? Spend a romantic night at Mirko's. They are taking reservations so be sure and call 726-4444 quickly. A little further down the road we have Gin Lane. For $100 plus tax and gratuity enjoy a wonderful evening of dancing to the DJ, a cocktail party with open bar, hors'doeuvres, and raw bar.

Then sit down and have a delectable four-course meal with a champagne toast at midnight. Festivities begin at 8 p.m., call 726-7585 for reservations.

Now I will take you to my favorite restaurant Bobby Van's in Bridgehampton. Starting at 8:30 p.m. for $100 per person plus tax and gratuity enjoy a four-course dinner, a DJ, a champagne toast at midnight and my personal favorite, party favors. A 6:30 p.m. seating is available for the regular menu. Call 537-0590 for reservations.

We certainly can't forget about Sag Harbor. Go to the Cigar Bar for a free dinner buffet, complimentary champagne at midnight, after hours party from 4 a.m. until 8 a.m. with complimentary breakfast at 4 a.m. This is a party for the ultimate late nighters.

How about moving on into Wainscott to the Star Room, where you can find my brother parting to DJ EV, DJ 730, performances by Scott Henry, as well as Augie and Omar. $150 per person gets you a special four-course meal and admission to the party. Tickets for the party alone are $50. Call 537-3332.

Back on 27 and we wind up at Rubi Red. Starting at 9 p.m. they will be serving a three-course special dinner and dancing, complimentary split of champagne for $75 per person plus tax and gratuity. After 10 p.m. Paul Gene and friends will be performing.

East Hampton you say? How about 1770 House? It is their first annual New Year's Eve celebration and it will be terrific. $150 per person includes a five-course menu, live entertainment, champagne toast at midnight and party favors.

Our last stop is in Amagansett at the Stephen Talkhouse. My favorite performer will be rocking in the New Year. Catch Nancy Atlas for only $25. Who better to sing Auld Lange Syne with? I hope you have enjoyed the New Year's Eve tour. Remember, a limo or taxi are cheaper than a car accident or jail. Be safe.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood in The Hamptons

What, me? Prejudiced? You bet your prized, Cinemaphile Merit Badges, I am! Why should I be out of step in the current march backwards into the good ol' past of tacit understandings, gentleman's agreements and nary a thought of political correctness? I'm proud to say I cast a biased eye on any and all movie remakes and sequels that are remakes with a pretense of story advancement, so you can bet those shiny, Movie Maven pins of yours that I'm not going to embrace Analyze That, with a lot of human kindness. I'll not mention that it used to bother me that Robert De Niro is cast as your typical Italian-American – as adept at stuffing a car trunk as at stuffing a cannoli. Or that Billy Crystal is your stereotypical Jewish guy. Billy, as Ben Sobel, is educated, but has his neurotic, shaky backbone and psyche attached to a pot of chicken soup. De Niro as mob capo, Paul Vitti, was also neurotic in the original Analyze This, however, though a thug, he had bearing. In this sequel he is made vulgar to the degree of those crude movie hits for preteens. Oh my, my prejudices are showing, right out of the two eye-holes of my pointed hood. But hey, in a time when Strom Thurman, one of the strongest advocates for segregation, is being lauded and we're told by the leader of the Senate that, if Thurman had prevailed, we wouldn't have had all this "trouble." Well, if people listened to me, we wouldn't have a sequel like Analyze That causing an embarrassment. I guess we can write it off to supply side economics – whatever. But, gee, Ferd', look what's trickling down. Yuck! Fine, De Niro has had more financial success as a comic in Analyze This and Meet The Parents. Mr. Crystal is the producer of the Analyze movies and he's gung-ho to do a third titled, Analyze The Other Thing. They'll be thankful for more presidential tax relief. Trickle, trickle, trickle.

Adaptation, Analyze That

Plots and subplots, mess up all over the place as gangster Vitti is released into the custody of his psychotherapist and buddy Ben, and attempts at legit jobs. Ha-ha. Then the perfect job, consultant to a Sopranos type television series starring, Anthony La Paglia. Vitti thinks LaPaglia is what? English? (La Paglia is Australian and, was considered for the Tony Soprano role.) There's always rivalry between the mobs and Vitti's goombahs are back in the whacking business. Hold on! Here's another prejudice, a ray of bright light with the appearance of Cathy Moriarty – Gentile, who put a lot of the stunning in the stunning Scorsese-De Niro Raging Bull. Also, jammed into this minestrone is Lisa Kudrow, Ben's typically nagging wife. Some genuineness is provided by Joe Viterelli, as Jelly, De Niro's elephantine best boy. He's funny because he is believable. De Niro's successful comedies had that. No need for low, crotch-grabbing jokes that can make their prototype, The Sopranos, wince. Come to think of it, I feel for Mr. De Niro, all that desperate crotch-grabbing might really make him a soprano. It is strange to see the formidable, threatening power he has, turned buffoon. Why not? That Senate leader known for years for his buffoonery, now has the power to threaten.

Now to something not that entirely different,

Adaptation. Nicholas Cage admirably works his way through a fabulously constructed script, portraying twin scriptwriting brothers, in one of the best of his few excellent performances. The two brothers become two personalities, seemingly splitting one writer. They are adapting a book as rare and exotic as the theme, The Orchid Thief, in which the author, Susan Orlean (Meryl Streep), involves herself in the passion of a fanatical connoisseur of Florida swamp life (Chris Cooper), and catches his unmitigated ardor. The main conflict wrestles with Charlie, the smarter brother's feeling of inadequacy as an adapter and, with Donald, his less intellectual brother's simple ability to adapt to Hollywood's commercialism. This insinuates itself into the script by the real life Kaufmans. Few films have been able to capture the hardships of the creative process as this does. It is also wondrous, as directed by, Spike Jonze, in its seamless quality. In spite of being close to over-contrivance, you are taken in easily and succumb – even into a breath-sucking ending as slippery as quicksand.

What the film gets at, is the quandary we all face. De Niro, faces it big time: The difficulty of brilliance and the easiness of get-by-hack work. The trying troubles of good and the facility of bad. In this Jekyll and Hyde world of A Movies, B Movies and X Movies, you have to be careful of what you choose to elect.

ED KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

This is an extraordinary film depicting the despair of 66-year old Warren Schmidt (Jack Nicholson). Upon reaching the compulsory retirement age of his insurance company, he feels he has nothing to look forward to, and his wife Helen (June Squibb) provides little positive support. Waking up next to her in bed one morning, we hear his inner voice asking who is this old woman lying next to me. When Helen suddenly dies, his life changes from bad to worse.

Schmidt's daughter Jeannie (Hope Davis) is marrying Randall Hertz (Dermot Mulroney) in Denver, Colorado: He unsuccessfully tries to get her to cancel the engagement and ultimately drives to Denver in his mobile home to attend the wedding. In Denver, Schmidt meets and stays at the home of Randall's mother Roberta (Kathy Bates). She is delicious in her role. At one point she disrobes and enters a hot tub naked in which Schmidt is sitting. I give Bates high marks for enormous courage in revealing her sagging breasts and huge rump.

About Schmit (+)

Some of Nicholson's great films include Easy Rider, Five Easy Pieces, and One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest. In every one of them, he uses his baleful eyes to leer, convey power and often evil intent. In this film he uses his eyes to convey fear, despair, and his advancing age. His corpulence is astonishing, but perhaps he bulked up for this film. My recollection is of his being slim and managing the passage of time gracefully which is what I want to do.

This is a gripping film that everyone will enjoy and, I believe, one with which many aging moviegoers will identify. Their pleasure in watching it, if any, will come from knowing they are not alone in reflecting on and evaluating their lives. The movie should not be missed.

Before Ed Koch was a film critic for Dan's Papers he was the mayor of New York.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS

london theatre reviews... by gordin &amp; christiano

Just after Thanksgiving, we dashed across the Atlantic for a London theater excursion managing to see six plays in five days. It was difficult deciding from the wealth of opportunities what we would actually see. Ticket availability was quite good and a number of shows could be found at Tkts, the official half-price and discount theater ticket booth in Leicester Square. We wanted to see the Dames, Judi Dench and Maggie Smith, in David Hare's sold out new play, Breath of Life, and had purchased these tickets well in advance.

First up, however, was a stunning revival of Lerner and Loew's masterpiece My Fair Lady at the Drury Lane Theatre Royal. This is a lavish production with charming characters and wonderful music. Trevor Nunn has done a remarkable job directing it, and the cast is uniformly excellent, including every single member of the chorus. Joanna Riding as Eliza, sings beautifully with sweetness and power, and Alex Jennings brings vulnerability to Professor Higgins making him charming as well as difficult. The sets by Anthony Ward are breathtaking, unfolding magnificently from scene to scene. This is a not to be missed production for any serious fan of the musical theater.

On Saturday we saw two shows. The matinee was Mrs Warren's Profession by Bernard Shaw at the Strand Theatre. This is an absorbing revival directed by Peter Hall with Brenda Blethyn in the lead. Mrs Warren's profession is, of course, prostitution, and the author makes his points that all capitalists are whores and women will always resort to selling their bodies for survival if necessary. Ms. Blethyn's assured performance is the main reason the production works as well as it does, and she is a marvel at the play's end revealing Mrs Warren's desperate need and her anguish at losing her daughter.

The evening brought us to the Duchess Theatre where Damsels in Distress, a new trilogy of comedies, written and directed by the acclaimed Alan Ayckbourn played consecutively on Saturdays at 11:30 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. We saw RolePlay, the last of the three, and judging from conversations with audience members, who had seen them all, possibly the finest and most entertaining. They were written for the same space, a Docklands flat, are performed by the same company of actors and share a common theme - a damsel in distress. We found RolePlay hilarious yet subtle, and beautifully performed by a gifted ensemble. The story concerns an introductory supper for Julie-Anne Jobson's future parents-in-law, an occasion planned down to the last detail. No one has planned, however, for the arrival of the desperate Paige Petite, who literally drops in from the upstairs flat, hotly pursued by the menacing Micky Rale. The ensuing evening is uproar of fun and laughter. The other two other plays in the trilogy are FlatSpin and GamePlan.

On Sunday we went to a matinee at the Comedy Theatre where Michael Weller's new play, What the Night is For, takes a look at modern marriage and infidelity. Gillian Andersen (from TV's Xfiles) is making her West End stage debut as a married woman, who meets her former lover for single night of passion. All I can say is don't bother, as Ms Andersen makes little of the role coming off stridently annoying. She is totally lacking in sexuality or playfulness, therefore rendering the play tired and tedious.

On Monday evening it was time for the Dames, Judi Dench and Maggie Smith, two great actresses sharing the stage alone together in the world premiere of The Breath of Life by David Hare and directed by Howard Davies, who just this season won a Tony award for his fabulous direction of Private Lives. Suffice it to say the Dames did not disappoint and were accorded a standing ovation at the play's end. The play itself, however, is a bit of a disappointment. Hare does have some witty things to say, but it doesn't add up to much more than a lament on the loss of youth and ideals. We heard the Clintons saw the production on Friday evening, from the royal box.

On our final night, we were treated to a tasty treat and a winning surprise in the intimate Jerwood Theatre Upstairs at the Royal Court, where *Crazyblackmuthaf***in'self* was in previews. The play by DeObia Oparei concerns Femi, an actor starring in Othello by day, macho big black jungle Nigga for hire by night and pre-op transie callgirl Shanequa in between times. A cast of characters drop in on Femi's flat and the ensuing action is a cathartic revelation by turns funny, dramatic, raunchy and provocative. The evening is great fun and highly recommend for the young and hip or anyone with a taste for the avant garde.

preview: nutcracker on ice world premiere in patchogue

Water; water everywhere and not a drop to drink because it has all been frozen the stage that is, the Gateway Theatres' stage, in Patchogue. It has been covered in ice for the classic Christmas fable, The Nutcracker, uniquely performed on ice by the Moscow Stars on Ice. These World and Olympic Champions will thrill and excite all ages with their stunning costumes and amazing skating artistry.

The original score written by Tchaikovsky has been spruced up by Alexander Goldstein and has been directed and co-choreographed by Igor Bobrin. Mr. Bobrin is a three-time USSR figure skating champion, European champion, and professor at the Russian State Academy of the Arts. The co-choreographer, Natalie Bestemianova is a five-time European Champion and World Professionals pairs skating champion.

The stars of The Nutcracker are the husband-and-wife team of Maria Samokhvalov's and Alexander Samokhvalov as Clara and the Nutcracker. The Samokhvalov's have been pair skating together since 1992 and have been married for 5 years. They have worked together with the Moscow Stars on Ice for 6 years.

Lucky for us we do not have to go all the way to Moscow to see these talented skaters perform. They will be on ice bedazzling us at the Gateway Theatre in Patchogue, 71 East Main Street opening this Friday, December 20 and running through December 31. There will be a special New Year's eve show and party package also available. For tickets to all shows, please call 1-888-4TIXNOW or stop by Gateway's box office in the Smith Haven Mall or at the Playhouse in Bellport, also available on the web at www.gatewayplayhouse.com

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

One of my students recently asked if I had a recipe for boeuf bourguignon, the classic French beef stew. "The best", I responded. Memories of my studies at the Cordon Blue in London flooded my brain. What brought to mind was this recipe to serve 10-12 people perfect for entertaining in winter and in particular when entertaining over the winter holidays. Cubes of boneless beef chuck are seasoned and sautéed then simmered in red wine with little white onions and fragrant herbs. It can be prepared up to 2 days ahead then simmered with earthy mushrooms before serving. What further set the dish apart are the fresh, crisp croutons served with the fork tender meat rather than the customary noodles. It makes a deliciously satisfying do-ahead main course.

A refreshing winter salad served with ripe, sweet pears and the crunch of toasted pecans makes a fine beginning to a holiday dinner. The dressing, the greens and the pecan garnish can be prepared ahead leaving the assembly to just before serving. And can a holiday party be complete without a special occasion dessert? Chocolate cream roll, a do-ahead dessert is reminiscent of Bouche de Noel, festive and rich with a decidedly holiday look. It's a dinner that takes some work. However much can be done in advance.

Wishing you Happy Holidays and a very happy, healthy and safe New Year.

WINTER SALAD WITH PEARS AND PECANS

A winter salad with sweet ripe pears and the crunch of toasted pecans.

Serves 8

For the vinaigrette

4 tablespoons imported red wine vinegar
2-3 teaspoons Dijon mustard
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1/3 cup plus 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil

For the salad

2 heads radicchio, torn into large pieces
2 heads Belgian, separated into leaves
2 bunches arugula, 4 oz. each
1/2 cup pecans, toasted and coarsely chopped
1/3 pound solid wedge of Parmesan
4 perfectly ripe pears such as Bartlett or Comice

1. Prepare vinaigrette ahead. Mix vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper in a bowl then gradually whisk in the oil until thoroughly incorporated. Transfer to a screw-top jar and refrigerate.

2. Wash and dry salad greens individually in a salad spinner. Transfer to paper towels, roll up and put into zip-lock bags and refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Put the nuts on a baking tray and roast in a 375 oven for 3-4 minutes until toasted. Cool, coarsely chop ahead and reserve. Shave Parmesan cheese with a cheese plane onto a dish and reserve.

3. When ready to serve peel, core and slice the pears. Dress the greens and toss with half the Parmesan shavings. Divide salad equally on salad plates. Arrange sliced pears equally over the greens, top with remaining cheese shavings, sprinkle with chopped pecans and serve.

SAUTE OF BEEF BOURGUIGNON

Serves 10-12

5 pounds boneless beef chuck
Flour for dredging meat
2-3 dashes cayenne
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper
3 shallots, finely chopped
3 cups dry red wine
1 tablespoons tomato paste

2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 cup chicken or beef stock
24 small white onions, peeled and left whole
2 teaspoons fresh thyme or 1/2 teaspoon dried
2 teaspoons fresh marjoram or 1/2 teaspoon dried
3 sprigs flat-leaf parsley tied with bay leaf
1 pound fresh mushrooms, trimmed, wiped clean, and halved
Fresh croutons and finely chopped parsley for garnish

1. Have butcher cut meat into 1 1/2 inch cubes. Place meat in a colander and sprinkle on flour plus several dashes of cayenne and toss to coat. In a large heavy skillet heat oil with 2 tablespoons butter and when foam subsides, add meat in batches and saute briskly until golden brown on both sides. Remove meat from pan as it is done and set aside. Saute the remaining meat until done. Season with a light sprinkle of salt and pepper. Transfer to a covered saucepan.

2. Pour off accumulated fat and add remaining tablespoon butter to skillet. Place over moderate heat and, when foam subsides, add shallots and saute quickly until tender but not brown. Pour in wine, bring to a boil over high heat, and with a wooden spatula stir to deglaze pan drippings and reduce by half.

3. Add tomato paste and garlic and stir into drippings. Add stock, onions, herbs and stir to mix. Transfer to the meat in the saucepan and simmer gently for 1 hour. Can be made ahead to this point.

4. About 15-20 minutes before you are ready to serve, add mushrooms to the beef mixture and simmer until everything is cooked through, stirring occasionally. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. When meat is tender and vegetables are cooked, transfer meat to a warm casserole or serving platter with a slotted spoon. If necessary reduce liquid in pan until it has thickened slightly. Pour over meat. Top with fresh croutons and chopped parsley. Serve immediately.

To Prepare Ahead: Follow steps 1-3 up to several days ahead and refrigerate in a suitable container, or prepare up to several weeks ahead and freeze. Bring to room temperature and complete step 4 before serving.

CHOCOLATE ROULADE

Purchase the very best chocolate you can buy for this special occasion holiday cake.

Serves 8-10

5 eggs, separated

3/4 cup superfine sugar
6 ounces semisweet chocolate plus 2 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour, sifted
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon rum
Confectioners sugar for decoration

Prepare pan: Line a jellyroll pan with waxed paper allowing a slight overhang. Grease one side with vegetable oil and invert onto pan. Flatten paper and lightly grease over top.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

2. Separate eggs into 2 mixing bowls, or into bowls of an electric mixture. Add sugar to yolks and beat until thick and pale in color, 3-4 minutes. Melt chocolate in a heavy saucepan with water over very low heat. When mixture appears softened, stir to a smooth cream. Cool. With a rubber spatula gently blend melted chocolate into yolk mixture alternately with the flour.

3. With clean beaters, beat egg whites in bowl of electric mixer or portable hand mixer, at low speed until firm but not dry. Gently fold into chocolate mixture

4. Pour batter into prepared pan and spread to the corners. Bake on middle shelf of preheated oven 20-22 minutes. When cake is done it will be springy to the touch and pull slightly away from sides of pan. Let cool. Carefully tip and lower the pan onto a lightly moistened towel. Lift off the pan and peel away the waxed paper. Aided by towel roll up sheetcake lengthwise and rest 10 minutes to assume rolled shape.

5. Meanwhile whip cream until firm. Fold in rum. Unroll cake and spread cream evenly, leaving a 1-inch border of exposed cake. Use the towel to help roll up the cake. Lift two ends of towel and transfer cake to a rectangular platter. Cover with plastic and refrigerate 3-4 hours or overnight.

6. To serve, cut off unattractive ends to expose the layers. Tap confectioner's sugar through a sieve before serving. Decorate cake if you like with rosettes of whipped cream.

Dining In The Hamptons

On a cold, wet, winter evening, entering Pacific East was to be transposed to a different warm, welcoming world. A world of soft candlelight – blue candlelight, in fact, soft long white drapes and a dramatic pair of drink and sushi bars with their rich tones.

Michael Castino is co-owner and Executive Chef with an impressive resume including spells with the world-renowned chef, Jean-Georges Vongerichten and managing the kitchens at Tavern on the Green. Coming from a long line of chefs, he told us how Asian cuisine has fascinated him from his young days. So, he had a very clear impression of the type of restaurant he wanted to open when he moved back to the Northeast from Miami about six years ago. Aram Sabet is the other co-owner with wide experience in marketing and design and his responsibilities include all of the front-of-the-house side of the business. Chef de cuisine, Joe Isidori has been at Pacific East since last April and he also comes from many generations of chefs and restaurateurs and specialized in Asian cooking at Nemo in South Beach Miami before moving to Long Island.

Pacific East tempts its clientele with many differing dishes and tastes. Apart from the main menu the sushi bar is extremely popular, especially on Sunday when it is offered at half-price. Then, on Wednesday, they have an extensive dim-sum menu.

We started the evening with sushi, which were beautifully prepared and presented and notable for the generous portions of fish relative to rice. The ponzu citrus dipping sauce was appropriately tangy and the warm sake, which is a house specialty, with eight premium sakes available, was a perfect complement. After this encouraging start, Joe sent out two examples of dim sum. Thai crab wonton with citrus soy and Shanghai style dumplings were delicate and tasty though the accompanying soy sesame sauce with the dumplings may be on the salty side for some tastes.

From the list of appetizers, we tasted the lobster and shitake Peking pancake with champagne kim-chi cream. This was a wonderful presentation, with the pancake tied up with a thread of leek and was as spectacular in taste as in its appearance and the best was that none of the tastes were overpowered. The miso rubbed chicken salad served with baby spinach, sugar snaps and wontons provided a totally different set of textures and tastes and again all of the tastes came through so very cleanly. To accompany these dishes we drank a glass of a Pinot Gris from Alsace and a Sauvignon Blanc from Bordeaux which were both very good wines.

From the fish dishes we then tasted one of the signature dishes of Pacific East, Cedar roasted Japanese black cod over a truffled celery root puree and mirin pan juices. This cod, having a higher fat content is very different from the more usual Atlantic cod and holds its taste and texture very well and this is a dish for all fish lovers to savor. Miso broiled salmon showed the versatility of this fish with a sweet Maui ginger sauce and stir-fried bok choy.

Duck is another house specialty, served as a crispy confit with a very unusual cranberry bread pudding and a plum wine huckleberry sauce and again the dish was absolutely delicious. Lamb shanks cooked with roasted apricots and a curried yogurt sauce were exceptionally tender with the meat ready to fall off the bone. This dish appeared slightly lacking in a totality of tastes compared to the other dishes but to be fair this could be the result of our palates becoming slightly dulled by this stage of the extensive tasting menu that Joe had kindly prepared for us. With the meat dishes we drank a glass of a full-bodied Talus, Napa Pinot Noir selected by the attentive Oliver Collongette.

To finish the meal, nothing could have bettered the

Dining In The Hamptons

Steakhouses of the old school variety are hard to come by these days. They are not the standard businessman's luxury anymore. Things have gotten complicated with so many different kinds of cuisine at our disposal. The days of two martini lunches, cigar smoking and a rare NY strip steak at noon, are way before my time, but I can appreciate the lure and simplicity of those days. I remember being a little girl and my father not being hungry at the dinner table because of the very important business deal he and his Wall Street cohorts had struck over a long lunch at Morton's.

The famed Bobby Van's is still going strong in the same fashion that they have been serving Hamptons glitterati for over three decades. Bobby Van's is as much a landmark in Bridgehampton as The Candy Kitchen, and this is a landmark that keeps reinventing itself. Now in New York City, The Hamptons and Washington, D.C. Bobby Van's has secured established an all out steak-lovers empire. But while you are there, it still feels like your own club. The bar and dining room do have quite a clubby feel; the regulars know the menu, they know what they like and what they don't like. There is a cult-type following of ladies who lunch who covet the Harry's Salad - a mirepoix of shrimp, green beans, bacon, tomato and balsamic vinegar - and some people who will absolutely swear by the gorgonzola-crusted sirloin steak. But do not let the regulars scene at the bar scare you, Bobby Van's is very much ready to welcome you in and with this winter's menu, BV's is serving up some of its best dishes in years.

And if you're not a corporate hound, a lady who lunches or part of the Hampton jet set, don't feel that this is not your place - Bobby Van's doors are open for everyone and business is as booming as ever. The appetizers are a sharer's delight, seemingly more geared to a dinner starter or a lunchtime entrée, they are quite big and filling. Among the star appetizers sampled on a recent Sunday evening included a knockout clams casino, sinfully delicious oysters Rockefeller and crisp rings of fried calamari. Other standard favorites include a crab cake with mustard remolade, a Thai-flavored shrimp taco and abundant raw bar selections. Bobby Van's serves up Robin's Island oysters from nearby Peconic Bay, little neck clams on the half shell and a shrimp and lobster cocktail.

Bobby Van's has many salads on the menu for lunch and dinner. They offer a great classic caesar salad, which they served with thick grilled chicken or tuna at lunchtime and the all-famous Harry's salad, which has been likened to the Palm's equally famous Gigi's salad. The salads change seasonally but they always offer the steakhouse favorite sliced tomato and red onion salad and Boston Bibb, radicchio roasted beets with bleu cheese and a simple mixed green salad. And nightly there is a trio of special soups to warm you through the winter.

The appetizers offer a great start to the meal but still elicit cries of, "Bring on the steak," because at Bobby Van's the beef is king. The steaks are so outstandingly good, better than just about anywhere else you may hope to find them and that is due mostly to the fact that Bobby Van's only offers dry aged-cuts of the highest quality. Depending on how you like it, you can order a porterhouse for two, three or four or individual entrees of filet mignon, sirloin or veal or lamb chops. And you can build from there.

Steaks are served up with a selection of steakhouse favorites including Bobby Van's famous home fries, onion rings and creamed spinach. Also popular are sautéed mushrooms and crispy French fries.

Bobby Van's

2393 Main Street, Bridgehampton
631-537-0590

Despite all of these carnivores delights, Bobby Vans has become quite well known for the other house specialties which are comprised of rotating fish specials, scallops and butter poached lobster and pan roasted chicken. On a given night there is always tuna, salmon and swordfish on the menu along with a duck special and other seasonal specialties. All of the dishes have a distinctly local flavor with a seasonal sensibility. In the summer dishes are lighter and more simple and in the winter the dishes will draw you in, make you comfortable and insure that you will not want to leave.

And before you leave you must try two things - the flourless chocolate cake and the pecan pie. Both are light enough not to put you over the top and are positively delicious. Other desserts include standard like crème brulee and key lime pie. Coffees and cappuccinos arrive promptly with an offering of digestifs and you can bet that you will want to linger and enjoy the warm, convivial setting.

—Jessica Romm

Bobby Van's is open throughout the holidays and on New Years they have a prix fixe that includes four courses and a champagne toast for $100 per person (plus tax & gratuity). Sample menu items include seared foie gras with green grape and port wine reduction;

Kobe beef carpaccio with fennel and hearts salad with white truffle essence; 1 1/2 lb. Lobster stuffed with shrimp and scallop oreganata; and chocolate fondant with crème a l'anglaise. Well-worth stopping in.

Pucker Up: It's Mistletoe Time

That giant sucking sound? It's not the sound of jobs being lost to our friends south of the border as a result of NAFTA as Ross Perot prophesized; it is your Aunt Martha under the mistletoe accosting every cousin who walks by her. Inevitably, with the tree, wreathes, lights and stockings, comes the mistletoe and along with it, the opportunity to smooch the one you love, or get smooched by Aunt Martha – a mixed blessing by any measure. So whether it's case A, and you're laying a wet one on your woman, or case B and Aunt Martha is laying a wet one on you, you have the Druids (or the Greek gods, or the Anglo-Saxons) to thank – or blame – whichever the case may be.

Back in the day (meaning a long, long, long time ago), mistletoe was revered by the Druids. Because this plant grows without roots in the ground, they believed that the gods planted it. The Druids used it as an antidote to poisons, to make sacrifices to their gods, to protect them from curses and witchcraft, cure illnesses and exorcise demons. Women wore it around their neck, hoping it would bless them with fertility. Some hung it over a crib to protect babies from being kidnapped by fairies, and others wore it around their neck because they believed it would make them invisible. The Druids valued mistletoe so much that they would trim it from trees with golden sickles and place a white cloth on the ground to prevent any of it from touching the earth. Any trimmings that touched the ground would lose their powers, so they believed.

So how does their obsession with mistletoe relate to the holiday tradition? Well, it was the sacredness of the mistletoe that made Druids drop their weapons if they saw an enemy beneath it and call a truce until morning. The Druids' use of mistletoe influenced Christians in England to ban the plant from their churches. Yet, somehow, the plant is now a tradition within the Christian holiday.

The Druid legend is not the only one from which the holiday tradition of kissing under the mistletoe may have originated. There is also the tale of the Norse god Balder and his mother Frigga, the goddess of love. When an arrow made of mistletoe killed Balder, his mother shed tears that turned into mistletoe berries as she brought him back to life. Frigga would then kiss anyone who passed under the mistletoe. From then on, it was believed that no harm would come to anyone who stood under the green plant and was kissed.

Today, there are a few variations as to how the kissing under the mistletoe tradition is practiced. Some

One custom was initiated to prevent the kissing from getting out of hand. This tradition only allows a boy to kiss a girl under the mistletoe if he picks one berry for every kiss. The kissing must then end once all of the berries are gone. This aspect of the tradition is rarely practiced today. However, you may want to keep it in mind the next time you see Aunt Martha puckering her lips.

The evolution of the tradition of the mistletoe is interesting, and so is the plant itself. The only animals that eat mistletoe berries and survive are birds. In fact, these birds carry mistletoe seeds with them as they fly from one tree to another. This is how the mistletoe spreads throughout the forest.

Many people do not know that mistletoe is a parasite. In fact, it is the only plant that can be considered a parasite because of the way it kills the trees that it infests. The roots penetrate the bark of the host tree, allowing the mistletoe to feed off of the water and nutrients within. The longer the parasite is attached, the quicker the tree is sapped and weakened.

Although mistletoe apparently has its negative qualities, its reputation has flourished in many cultures. The plant's history is slightly ambiguous, but we still embrace it as a holiday symbol today. So, hang your mistletoe to get a kiss, bring blessings to your house, protect your children from fairy thieves and decorate the home. Just remember to take it down when Aunt Martha is on the prowl, or remove the berries.

—Kirk Cassels

believe that if a couple kisses under the mistletoe that it is an omen of an upcoming marriage, or a prediction of longevity and ultimate happiness. If the mistletoe was not then burned on Twelfth Night, any couples who kissed under it would not be blessed.

About Face.....with Annette

HOW MANY SHOPPING DAYS LEFT TILL CHRISTMAS?

You have got to be kidding! Walmart is now open round the clock now in hopes of luring insomniacs out of their stupor or keeping them in it! Not a bad idea. Shopping while the world sleeps. Although they have a perfectly good website for those last minute items, there are still some who go for the hands on approach.

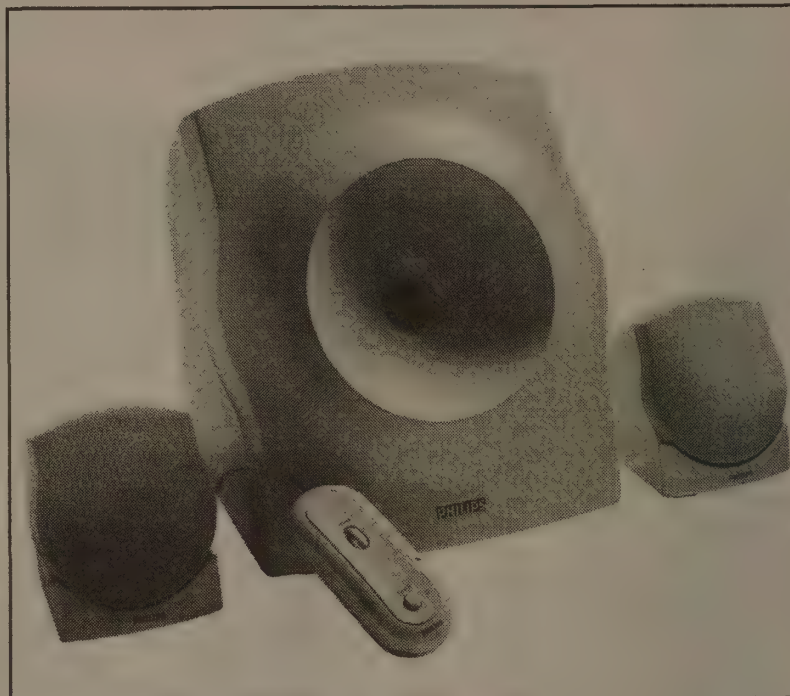

Well, for you last minute folks, the ones who have just run clean out of ideas and are pacing the floor contemplating getting the car keys... lets see if we can strike some sanity into your life now. If you are dead set against hitting the malls this time of year, for whatever reason you have, there are other options. If you have to buy for a group of people, like people who work together and you don't want to get them the same gift well...we'll get back to that, but if you have to get for a few, you can pick up some really nice gifts at your local Costco or BJ's Clubs. From winter clothes for men, women and children, to gift baskets of every sort, to books, to toys, to cameras and computer gadgets, you name it, they have it and at great prices. You can buy a great set of pots for the cook, or unbloomed as of yet bulbs ready in a holiday container for force blooming in the future dreary months. For that photographer, a box of film would be much appreciated along with some AA batteries for flash. They have a great variety of videos and music as well. If you are not a member, a membership can be started right away at their service desk for a fee of about $35-40 per year. Shop instantly! You won't regret this the year throughout either. For seasonal items, they can't be beat.

Now if you need to get a gift for people who work together, and you don't want to duplicate, you can get them all gift certificates to different local restaurants and establishments. A gift certificate to a place that serves a wonderful Sunday brunch would be much appreciated.

Something for people to do on a lazy weekend. It's not necessary to include the tip in it either. The service will determine that. They can switch among themselves also, making sure everyone is happy. This is also a nice gift for your handyman, home cleaner, baby sitter or someone who just helps you out year round.

Don't forget the Trash and Postal Service. Especially if you have the same crew and carrier all the time. A nominal amount of money in a money envelope would be a welcome gift right before Christmas or New Years. I know someone who, every year, puts out a good size package of beer... and if you look up and down the block everyone else puts out a decorative bottle. Somehow they think this carrier is a person with a drinking habit! I wonder what they do with all that spirit! Can they return it for cash at the liquor store? Why not just give cash to begin with.

If you are caught short, say an unexpected person arrives for dinner and you are going to exchange gifts, shoot out to the local stationary store or Barnes&Noble.. grab yourself a magazine that you think they would just love to have as a subscription. Open it, tear and fill out the subscription card and mail right away, before you take it home and forget. Take the magazine home, roll it, tie it with a festive ribbon and bow and present it saying they will be getting it for a year! Oh, and make sure you take their address to the store with you. If you are really good at remembering these things, put it in your phone book to do immediately after they leave. Do not discount Home Depot also for some gift credit cards as presents. Keep them around for emergency presentations and if you don't use them as gifts, you'll surely make use of them yourself.

Another emergency trip can be made to your nearby Pharmacy. There you will find the latest in creams and lotions, makeup and doodads for teens, parents, strangers and kids. Gather a bunch together and pick up a little gift bag, stuff with some pretty tissue paper and you have yourself an impronto gift. In fact, why not do this ahead of time, this way it will be in the house ready for a give away in an heartbeat. If you don't need to, you will be set with some new stuff yourself!

It is tough going if you have waited to the last minute to get all your shopping done. But try to organize, make a list, set a budget, and think of the places no one else does to make your purchases. Phone cards make great gifts as well as great stocking stuffers. Think music, books toiletries, gift certificates. If you don't want to lock someone into one place with a certificate then go the cash route. Dress light, there is nothing like walking around a mall or store with a heavy coat on carrying all these packages. Leave your coat in the car and make a run for it! You'll be glad you did once you are moving around. Maybe even carry a small bottle of water with you. Hope you all have a wonderful holiday and on behalf of my colleagues here at Dans and myself, a very Happy, Healthy and Beautiful New Year! Seen you in January!

Police Blotter

Is this Christmas, or Halloween? An East Hampton man called police on Tuesday to report some mischievous activity that occurred at his house sometime between early October and last week while he was away. Someone did $200 in damage to his fence by ripping various slats off and stained his shingles by throwing eggs at his 5th Street house.

Bad time of the year to lose two grand... A Manor Lane resident notified police when he realized someone had stolen $1,500 cash from his East Hampton house. Further investigation revealed that the thief had also stolen his checkbook and cashed a $500 check, bringing his total holiday loss to $2,000.

An employee of Y Pay More in East Hampton arrived to work last Sunday and discovered a broken window and a missing jar of quarters. The thief smashed the $100 window to gain entrance before making off with the $30 jar of quarters. He or she, if caught, will face charges of criminal mischief, petit larceny and burglary in the 3rd degree.

More hunting "incidents" were reported to police this week. Voicestream Wireless technicians called the cops after discovering that a wire, 150 feet in the air hung from a tower, was shot with a bullet, causing it to snap and fall to the ground. Police are investigating to try and discover who's hunting for the lowest wireless rates.

The dog days of winter are upon a Springs resident. His neighbor's k-9 companion allegedly killed 10 chickens and 3 pigeons being kept in his back yard. With police mediating, the neighbors decided to settle out of court.

Another shopper at the Bridgehampton King Kullen had her purse stolen while it sat in her cart. The Wainscott resident called police to report her $400 purse, $50 wallet, credit cards and her glasses stolen. I think if she had been wearing her glasses, I may not have been writing about this incident.

An officer patrolling East Hampton last week observed a male subject swerving in his Thunderbird on Gardiner Avenue. The man was subsequently pulled over to take a few field tests. As he stepped out of his car the officer noticed the smell of marijuana and a small glassine envelope (used to store marijuana) on the floor. The driver passed all the sobriety tests with flying colors. However, his car didn't do so well. Taking a further look inside, the investigating officer found another glassine envelope, a roach, a blunt and "a small amount of a dried, green, leafy substance" which later tested positive as marijuana. The driver was booked, but later released on $100 bail and is awaiting a court date. Boy, that was drier than the Sahara, huh?

Dan's Letters

JUST DOIN' HIS JOB

Dear Dan,

Hi, it is me, Charles Wildbank, artist of some of your magazine covers.

That was brilliant the heading you wrote on SMACK IRAQ? It rests on the core secret of our personal magic: Peace comes from within, if Bush and his administration would realize it.

The heading Who Are Our Enemies And Who Do We Think Are Our Enemies? followed by subheading: "It is when you get a person who believes... that those who do not follow these guidelines deserve to die... That you get terrorism." Dan I just read a great book by Neville Johnston, Language Codes, which covers how our words and beliefs create our reality. He also covers some of the vocabulary in our language can be watched more closely for sabotaging content, particularly the vocabulary that perpetuate the "we/they" concept that divides humanity.

If we want friends, we would best be a friend!

Brilliant, brilliant, bravo, Dan! Wise one!

Thank you for publishing that, it did not go unnoticed! Powerful.

DA-NILE IS A RIVER IN AFRICA, THOUGH

Dear Dan,

My name is Leann Ratner. I read your article on the Gentle Lion. I have a safari company in Kenya and Sombaru. I read your line which was not true. There are no tigers in Africa, only in India. If you are interested in the lion story we have been following her with our elephant.

WHOEVER IT WAS, IT REALLY HURT

Dear Dan,

I stumbled upon your article on the Wide World of Sports intro, Agony of Defeat and I wonder if you would resolve some discrepancies between your information and all other information I've been able to find online. For example, other sources claim that the accident occurred on March 21, 1970, and that the skier was Vinko Bogataj, from Slovenia (a federated republic of Yugoslavia). There are many online sources confirming this, but the major ones include the following:

Wide World of Sports Highlights: <http://espn.go.com/abcsports/wwos/milestones/1970s.html> and ABC Sports commentator & producer Doug Wilson: <http://kendrick.colgate.edu/maroon/042602/news/thrill.html>

BLATANTLY PATRIOTIC

Dear Dan,

I have been reading your articles for years now and have enjoyed them very much. But I think you have missed the point here. We are not going to WAR with Iraq because of terrorism; we are possibly going to war because this man has continued to build weapons of mass destruction.

Is the US pissed off? Absolutely! As far as the other countries you mentioned, having these same kind of weapons, if you think that we don't know and have a game plan regarding their programs, think again.

I challenge any of these bleeding heart liberals to spend a day in Iraq. Do they think they'd have the freedom to protest the way they do here? Or maybe they'd like to live through a nuclear winter? This is still the greatest country in the world. What the other countries need is some tough US love. Anytime any of them need help, who do they call upon? They're having trouble with disease, famine, and trade, setting up a new democracy who do they call? The US that's who. Which brings me to last point.

Russia. Who do these idiots think they are? Boy, did they suck up to us when they needed a bail out, and what happened? We went to the UN for support against Iraq and they sat on the fence for how long? These countries should all starve for a while.

I'll stop spewing now Dan; the more I think about the state of affairs against the US the more disgusted I get! Our country obviously has intelligence to back up what the president had to say. What that is I don't know and I don't think the press has a right to know every, single thing regarding the intelligence information. What is everyone ridiculous? Do you not think they tune into our TV reports? If I remember correctly, in W.W.II there were no press releases before the battles took place in an area. You got information after the fact, and I say that's the way it should be now.

OK I've said my piece! Thank you America for allowing me the freedom to do that.

CHRISTMAS CLOWN?

Dear Dan,

I live in Manhattan. Every Friday, I rush to the nearest Dan's Papers distribution bin so that I can read your paper every week. I really enjoy your zany articles. Seeing that it is the holiday season, I thought it would be nice to share this story with you.

My partner, Shelly, and I were recently enjoying a winter weekend out in the Hamptons. Each with a warm cup of hot chocolate in hand, we strolled down the beautifully decorated streets of East Hampton. As we took in the holiday decorations, Shelly mentioned that she swore she saw a Christmas movie that had the same exact scenery that we were looking at right then and there. I listed a bunch of movies out loud to jog her memory: It's A Wonderful Life, A Christmas Story, The Family Man and more.

We must have been pretty loud in our discussion because some clown came out of nowhere and dove in on it. Literally, it was a clown. He had big yellow lips, green hair, and a big red nose. "None of those were filmed here, but this place has inspired just about every Christmas movie you can think of," he said. He even claimed that scenes from the movie Gremlins were inspired by this place.

When we asked him how he knew such a thing, all he did was tell us that he knew everything about Christmas because he was the one and only Christmas Clown. Immediately after that, he started walking, then running, down the street. I can't believe I, for a moment, considered chasing after him to find out more.

This leads me to two questions. Is everyone in the Hamptons this weird around the holidays? And, have the Hamptons been home or an inspiration to scenes in Christmas movies?

Thanks for your time.
Sara Meshberg

Dans' Papers' has the highest weekly circulation in the Hamptons, with free Manhattan distribution. Our website receives up to 800,000 hits a month, making Dans' site the most visited of the East End publications. Our Classified section is second only to Newsday.

All ads in the Classified dept. are paid in full before scheduling or submission to the art dept. House designed ads are available to our clients for no charge. For refunds of the Service Directory, Mind, Body, and Spirit and other ads containing house created artwork, however, a design fee of $125 and an administration fee of 15% will be charged. Once Classified ads have been entered into the system and scheduled, we are not responsible for refunds or changes. Web ads usually appear Thursday by 6pm.

"Encore."

— Pia Lindstrom, Theatre Critic

Praise from a theatre critic can mean the difference between success and failure, which is why they choose their words very carefully. So when Pia Lindstrom asked David Dominski to come back, and handle the additions to her home — it spoke volumes. David Dominski, a third-generation builder of prestigious homes on the East End, has been recognized by Architectural Digest and Home magazine. Amongst his clients he's known for remaining on-schedule and on-budget, take a long bow, David. Most impressive is his reputation for being on-site. Pia Lindstrom said he was always there. She didn't have to call, leave messages, and hope he'd call back. Architects like working with David and often recommend him as well because he breathes life into their boldest designs. You can contact David directly or have your architect make the call. Pia's favorite room: the custom arbor off the kitchen — a place to reflect. David's favorite feature: the kitchen's lofted ceiling with old English barn beams. By the way, Pia said David was also fun to have around...bravo!
